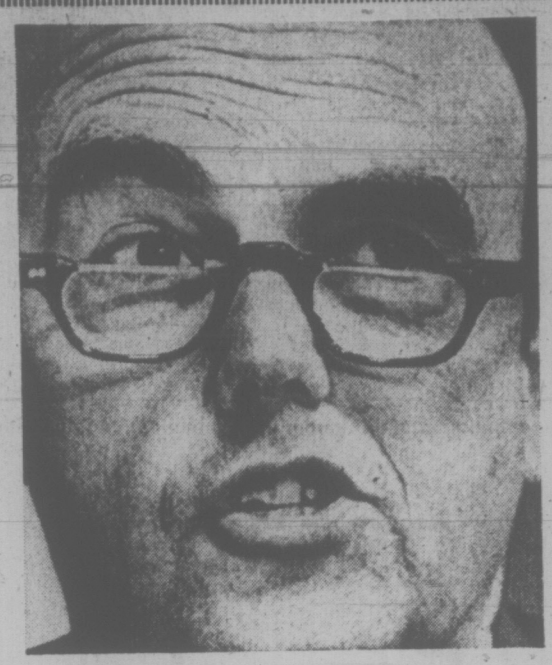
Secret Spy Raids Bared



Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The U.S. defence department disclosed today there were secret intelligence operations led by Americans into Cambodia and Laos throughout most of the Indochina war.

When Americans were killed in the operations, their families were told they had died in South Vietnam, Pentagon spokesman Jerry Friedheim said.

As late as June 20 this year, the fact of the operations was concealed in a report to Congress, he said.

At the same time, U.S. Defence Secretary James Schlesinger said that secret bombing raids over Cambodia in 1969 and 1970 "were authorized at the highest level" and Sen. Stuart Symington, acting chairman of the senate armed services committee, accused the Nixon administration of supporting the air war in Cambodia with millions of dollars obtained from congress "under false pretenses."

Sen. Harold Hughes, a former air force officer, was even more blunt: "The fact that these massive military operations and widespread falsifications of official reports could be kept secret so long," Hughes said, "convinces me that in this jungle of secret warfare and official deceit, there are uncharted depths, perhaps more frightening than what has yet been disclosed, to be brough to light."

The Cambodian disclosures, coming in the midst of the senate Watergate hearings, posed the threat of another major White House scandal.

Schlesinger conceded that erroneous information was given to members of Congress. He said this was a mistake. He said accurate records were kept of the Cambodian bombing for those who had a "need to know."

But Schlesinger said the information on the strikes, identifying South Vietnam targets, was fed into a data bank for use by personnel in charge of logistics, replacement of ammunition and the like.

When queries came from Capitol Hill, he said, through error "the answers were pumped out from the data bank."

"There has been no usurpation of civilian authority," Schlesinger said. "Military officials have meticulously followed the orders of civilian authorities."

Schlesinger discussed the secret raids on Cambodia border sanctuaries with reporters after testifying before Senate appropriations subcommittee on a controversy over 3,630 attacks by B-52s on communist sanctuaries in Cambodia for 14 months prior to May 1, 1970.

Sources estimated the total cost of the secret raids was about $150 million.

Friedheim, meanwhile, said a report to Congress June 20 had indicated that 81 Americans who actually died in Cambodia or Laos originally

Canada Rebuffed U.S. Offer

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp admitted Monday that Canada rebuffed American offers to negotiate on a Mackenzie Valley Pipeline as an alternative to the Trans-Alaska line.

He said in an interview that the Canadian government was prohibited "by law" from accepting the U.S. offer to negotiate on pipeline guidelines on a government-to-government level.

Sharp also agreed with a statement made Monday by a high U.S. State Department official that a Canadian delegation which visited Washington in May of last year stressed that it was not proposing the all-Canada route down the Mackenzie Valley as an alternative to the Alaskan proposal.

Julius Katz, deputy assistant secretary of state in charge of internation relations, had said earlier that a controversial letter his department wrote to the U.S. Congress on June 22, declaring that Canada has no strong current interest in a Mackenzie Valley pipeline was based on the department's experience with the Canadian government over the preceding four years.

Senator Walter Mondale (Dem.—Minnesota) has charged that the letter was a "massive misrepresentations" of the Canadian position.

Katz said Monday a prior agreement between governments was necessary to cover such points as future export taxes, access to the line for Canadian oil, as well as ownership and control.

He said that in 1970 Washington proposed such an agreement to "increase the energy interchange between the U.S. and Canada."

"The Canadians were unreceptive and at every point those efforts were rebuffed," he said.

"Well certainly," Sharp said Monday adding the government has no authority to negotiate on a Mackenzie Valley line since by law the National Energy Board has to approve any applications for such a line.

"We could not negotiate — we were prevented by law from doing so," the external affairs minister said. It was because of this, he added, that the Canadian government in its discussions with the Americans has tried to get the Americans to apply to build a line through Canadian territory.

He said that the Canadian government made it clear to the U.S. government that it would welcome such an application.

Sharp was asked, if everything is up to the NEB, why the Liberal minority govern-

Dean Lied—Ehrlichman

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Ehrlichman today quoted President Nixon as saying in March that the 1971 Ellsberg break-in was "a vital national security inquiry" well within his constitutional powers and obligations.

Nixon said last May 22 that he didn't authorize the break-in, didn't know about it until recently, and would have disapproved it if brought to his attention.

Ehrlichman denied trying to hide the incident from FBI agents investigating last year's Watergate burglary and wiretapping, saying he had been told that the justice department already had the information.

He said the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist was a proper way to track down those who had betrayed government secrets, said any government official would understand that and keep the break-in confidential, and said even the public would agree if only news media would properly inform them of all the facts.

Testifying before the Senate Watergate committee, Ehrlichman also accused ousted White House counsel John Dean in general terms of lying to the committee.

He said the White House relied on Dean to supply information about the Watergate scandal.

"I do not suggest that we were all just too busy to have noticed," President Nixon's former domestic adviser said. "We did notice and we kept informed through John Dean on the assumption that he was giving us complete and accurate information.

"Let's be clear: I did not cover up anything to do with Watergate. Nor were Mr. Dean and I keeping steady company during all those weeks."

Ehrlichman described as "falser than all the other falsehoods" Dean's testimony that there was an overriding

Ferries Running Late

B.C. ferries were an hour behind schedule but sailing hourly and handling all the traffic this morning in a labor dispute involving ships' engineers.

Ferries manager Monty Aldous said only the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen run was affected this morning.

Peter Marshall, Victoria representative for the B.C. Government Employees Union, said the dispute involves engine checks by engineers before the start of each shift.

Engineers must undertake the check before sailing and come in 20 minutes ahead of shift to do it, said Marshall. Aldous said the engine checks are normal procedure and should only take five to 10 minutes.

Marshall said the 20-minute early start has been going on for some years and the issue has not been resolved in past negotiations.

The ferry authority wanted the matter referred to a committee but when the men heard this, they decided to take "spontaneous action" in protest Tuesday.

Aldous said today the request for such a committee came from union representatives and was accepted by management.

He said no one in the marine industry pays overtime for a change of shift and management could not find "anyone in any industry" paid overtime on a change in shift where there are 24-hour shifts as there are on most ferries.

"Since the memorandum of understanding under which we negotiate makes provision for the appointment of the neutral referee, whose decision is final and binding on all parties, to rule on items where there is a deadlock, we suggested turning the matter over to such referee for such a decision," Aldous said.

"We are still prepared to take such action and abide by the decision."

'Hinterland' Role Over in West: PM

CALGARY (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau served notice today that the "national policy" established a century ago by Sir John A. Macdonald no longer applies to Western Canada.

This means that the federal government recognizes that the West no longer is a "hinterland," designed merely to provide raw materials to serve Central Canada, he told the opening session of the conference on Western Economic Opportunities.

The prime minister agreed with the contention of the four western premiers that the old federal policy meant that western progress was unevenly spread and "narrowly-based."

"This conference at Calgary signifies the government of Canada's belief that, a century after the old national policy, we can now together begin shaping a new national policy, a policy to strengthen Canada by achieving more balanced and diversified regional growth throughout the country."

Although giving no details, he indicated several federal proposals to be made during the three-day conference: A program for further processing of resouces before export; changes in the transport system to promote more balanced western economic growth; new measures to stabilize agricultural income; more aid to small business; methods to enable westerners to develop regionally-based financial institutions; and greater opportunities for western input into federal decision-making.

FOUR OBJECTIVES

Trudeau listed four objectives for western development:

—A broader range of employment opportunities.

—Greater stability of income.

—Greater concern by all levels of government for the individual westerner.

The western summit began today with Trudeau and the four regional premiers sitting around a horseshoe-shaped table to swap ideas and proposals.

The premiers have all said they want action, not merely general solutions for the distant future.

PICKET LINE BETTER THAN HIS COOKING

PORT HARDY (CP) — Loggers employed by MacMillan Bloedel took to the picket line here Monday when they saw who was in the cookhouse.

A company spokesman explained the loggers have been complaining about the quality of food served them by a relief cook in the camp kitchen while the regular cook was on holiday.

The spokesman said the regular cook, who was due back for breakfast Monday, missed his plane and when the 180 loggers saw the relief cook still there they walked off the job and set up a picket line waiting for the regular cook to arrive.

The men went back on the job today when the regular cook turned up.

French Planning H-Test: Papers

PARIS (UPI) — French military experts plan to set off soon a new and powerful nuclear explosion in their Pacific testing grounds, possibly using a hydrogen warhead, it was reported today.

Two newspapers — the mass circulation France-Soir and the conservative Le Figaro — said France planned to follow up last Saturday's test of a low-yield nuclear triggering device with the explosion of a hydrogen warhead.

"A new nuclear test might be carried out tonight," France-Soir said. "It is reported to be a megaton charge, probably an 'H' bomb."

New Zealand naval observers estimated the size of the first explosion at five kilotons, the equivalent of 5,000 tons of TNT.

Reports reaching Papeete, Tahiti, said the French naval squadron policing the seas around the Mururoa Atoll test site will remain on station, strengthening reports a second blast would come shortly.

Military sources in Paris said the current test series was needed — despite widespread protests in France and abroad — to perfect a trigger for hydrogen warheads to be used aboard atomic submarines.

Food Prices Zoom in U.S.

Times News Services

Shoppers paying 73 cents for a dozen eggs at the start of President Nixon's new economic plan paid as much as $1.19 a dozen in New York City stores today.

Eggs, chicken and pork prices soared in many parts of the country Monday, the fourth day of Nixon's Phase IV economic program. There was some evidence shoppers were stocking up, in anticipation of even greater price increases to come.

Food prices have increased slowly since last Wednesday when Nixon announced the new plan which allows the food industry to pass along increased production costs to the public.

Eggs were up 12 cents a dozen in Salt Lake City and Kansas City, 10 cents in Washington, New York, Houston, Oklahoma City and Austin, Tex., nine cents in Boston, eight in Seattle and Los Angeles, Six in Atlanta and Dallas and five in Pittsburgh.

Poultry prices also rose quickly.

The price for whole frying chickens jumped from 59 cents a pound to 70 cents in New York City; from 59 cents to 79 cents in Columbus, Ohio. In Pittsburgh, chicken prices were up 10 cents a pound, Boston six cents, Atlanta four cents, and Chicago two cents. In Dallas, however, uncut chicken prices dropped—from 55 cents last week to 40 cents Monday.

The manager of a Tom Thumb market in Dallas said shoppers were stocking up on groceries.

"They wiped out the meat counter yesterday," he said. "We will be back in business today but they sure wiped us out yesterday. I wouldn't say it was a panic but there was a certain fear of shortage. In some cases they spent hundreds of dollars."

Meanwhile in Canada, a spokesman for Canada Packers said Monday in Edmonton the price of bacon will continue to rise as long as consumers are prepared to buy it.

Bacon, now selling at $1.19 a pound is expected to increase to $1.49 this week as meat prices reflect the removal of the price freeze in the United States, he said.

Commenting on estimates bacon prices in the U.S. would reach $1.79 a pound within 30 days, Robertson said it was not "unrealistic and it all depends on the consumer."

"If he'll pay, that's where the price will go."

Watergate: Who Holds Power?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The executive and legislative branches of United States government apparently are headed for a constitutional showdown that never before has been decided in United States history.

The issue is whether a president must obey a subpoena from Congress or a prosecutor. It was raised when President Nixon refused to turn over to Watergate investigators tape recordings of meetings between himself and former presidential aides implicated in the scandal.

Nixon was subpoenaed — twice by the Senate Watergate committee and once by special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox—making him one of only a few presidents to have been served subpoenas.

None of the previous cases reached the Supreme Court. Now the high court may become not only the ultimate referee but perhaps an equal participant in a three-way clash between the executive, legislative and judicial branches of government.

The nub of the legal issue involves the doctrine of the constitution that the three branches remain separate.

President Thomas Jefferson faced the issue in 1807 when Chief Justice John Marshall was sitting as the circuit judge in Aaron Burr's treason trial. Marshall subpoenaed Jefferson but stipulated that Jefferson need only furnish certain papers.

Jefferson produced the documents, but rejected the notion of a personal appearance as a judicial whim.

Watergate prosecutor Cox has gone back even further to support his demand on the presidency. He cited Marshall's landmark decision of 1803 in the Marbury-vs.-Madison case, in which the Supreme Court held that it could determine the constitutionality of acts of Congress.

Cox said the decision proved "ours is a system of government in which no man is above the law."

Nixon supporters argue the same case did not require the attorney-general to disclose certain information he felt a constitutional obligation to shield.

There was no indication Nixon will answer his subpoenas, but neither the Watergate committee nor Cox was speculating about the next step should the president refuse.

A spokesman for Cox declined to elaborate on the possibilities, and committee staff members say they are proceeding "one step at a time."

Nixon says that it would violate the separation of powers if a congressional committee or a prosecutor could force disclosure of confidential presidential records.

Watergate committee chairman Sam Ervin argues that executive privilege, if valid at all, cannot be used to cover up political or possibly criminal activities.

Prosecutor Cox argues that executive privilege has no bearing on his demand because the prosecutor's office belongs to the executive rather than the legislative branch.

Despite the 19th-century cases, constitutional lawyers agree there is little legal precedent for such a confrontation.

Dean Lied —Ehrlichman

concern in the White House about the break-in at Democratic party headquarters June 17, 1972, and its political consequences.

Nor, he said, was there obsessive concern with demonstrations, as Dean claimed.

"In 1969 the president took this nation into a new international era in which the stakes were extremely high," Ehrlichman said.

"From close observation, I can testify that he is not paranoid, weird, psychotic on the subject of demonstrators or hypersensitive to criticism.

Ehrlichman referred to Dean as the committee's "star witness" in the eight weeks of hearings, and said Dean had "hyphenated" him for five days by coupling his name repeatedly with that of chief of staff H. R. Haldeman.

"Dean testified that keeping Watergate covered up was a tremendous drain of my time and told of all the conferences and meetings I was having with him about it," Ehrlichman said.

In denying Dean's testimony, Ehrlichman gave the committee a list of meetings between June 17, 1972, the date of the Watergate break-in, until election day in November. The listing showed 22 meetings and Ehrlichman said eight of those were devoted to matters other than Watergate.

Explaining his own duties in the White House, the post he left April 30, Ehrlichman said one of his jobs was to gather purely political information for the president.

For his own part, Ehrlichman said, "I sincerely do not believe I am guilty of any wrongdoing."

In a 30-page statement prepared for his appearance as a witness before the committee, Ehrlichman defended the Nixon administration against Dean. He accused Dean of a "gallery-pleasing repetition of the old story about fear and paranoia in the White House."

Under questioning by the committee's counsel, Samuel Dash, Ehrlichman said he had been ignorant of scuttled White House plans to use burglary and unauthorized wiretapping against domestic radical groups.

He said he did attend a meeting in which the over-all intelligence scheme was discussed by the heads of the FBI, Central Intelligence Agency and other intelligence groups. But he said he didn't know that the plan involved burglary or wiretapping, that nobody told him that later, and that he never asked.

Ehrlichman said he knew that the plan was scuttled because FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover objected. But he said he assumed Hoover complained on grounds the plan took away some of his powers, not because of any illegal activities it involved.

He said he knew about the formation of a domestic intelligence unit inside the justice department, but said its purpose was to gather available informations about terrorist bombings, co-ordinate it and attempt to find if a national pattern existed.

Ehrlichman testified that from time to time he authorized wiretapping for national security purposes while he was counsel to the president, a position he held through early 1970. But he declined to discuss details.

"I am under a stricture which doesn't really permit me to be very responsive to your questions," Ehrlichman said.

Dash's questioning led Ehrlichman into a discussion of the White House plumbers — Watergate conspirators E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy — who broke into the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist in Beverly Hills, Calif., searching for Ellsberg's files.

Ehrlichman said the plumbers group was organized because Hoover was opposed to questioning Ellsberg's wife's family and ordered the transfer and demotion of a top man who had put in a routine request to interview Ellsberg's father-in-law.

As Ehrlichman testified, the committee and special prosecutor Archibald Cox awaited the next move on their struggle to pry, through subpoenas, information which Nixon has denied them. The subpoenas for tapes of presidential conversations touching on Watergate and for papers in the White House were served Monday after Nixon refused voluntarily to release the requested information.

The White House said today Nixon will take "appropriate action" by Thursday to challenge the three subpoenas.

Watergate Committee Chairman Sen. Sam Ervin accused Nixon of failing in his duty to provide "a high standard of moral leadership," and said he believes the scandal has surpassed the Civil War as the worst tragedy in the U.S.

At least there were heroes and a spirit of sacrifice in the Civil War, he said. "I see no redeeming features in Watergate."

Other members of the committee indicated that Nixon had backed them into a corner and forced them to issue subpoenas for the tapes.

Hostages Freed, Jet Blown

A Japanese air lines 747 hijacked five days ago in Europe landed late Monday night in Benghazi, Libya, where the air pirates released their 154 hostages unharmed and then destroyed the $25 million plane with hand grenades which exploded "like a string of firecrackers."

The Middle East News Agency said the four hijackers were arrested by Libyan police. It said two of them were Arabs, one was Japanese and the fourth "looked like an European." A fifth hijacker, a woman with an Ecuadorian passport, was killed when her hand grenade exploded Friday.

Japan Air Lines said there were 133 passengers and 21 crew members aboard the plane and that it had dispatched a relief plane to fly them to some European city, Rome or Paris.

The motives of the hijackers in the five-day drama remained a mystery.

Early in the hijacking they said they sought the release of Kozo Okamoto, 24, a Japanese Kamikaze guerrilla serving a life sentence in Israel for an attack on Tel Aviv's Lod Airport which killed several persons in May 1972. Israel said it would not release Okamoto and the hijackers never mentioned him again. Nor did they make any attempt to bargain the plane and passengers for money, officials said.

As the 747 was taxiing to a halt, the hijackers ordered the passengers and crew to get out, leaving their baggage behind. They started sliding down emergency chutes while the aircraft was still rolling and everybody was out within four minutes, an airport official said.

The passengers and crew, who had been held under the menace of grenades and pistols for 87 hours, scattered in panic across the airfield as grenades began exploding aboard the plane. Then the plane exploded and caught fire, splattering wreckage across such a wide area Libyan officials closed the airport to traffic.

Many of the passengers were in poor condition, but none was seriously hurt, an airport official said two were taken to hospital for treatment.

One of the passengers, 32-year-old Japanese antique dealer Sam Someya, said he lost Japanese works of art worth 10 million yen (about $375,000) which he bought in London and was taking to Tokyo.

In London, a spokesman for Lloyds said hijacking losses of the kind suffered in the blowing up of the jumbojet in Benghazi have cost insurance companies about $100 million in the last three years. Most of these losses were borne by the London insurance market, he said.

Losses in 1970 amounted to about $50 million, other losses since then to more than $20 million, the Lloyd's spokesman said.

The plane blown up today was insured for $24 million.

4 Condemned

MANILA (AP) — A military court has sentenced four Filipinos to die before a firing squad for kidnapping a wealthy businessman, military authorities announced today. The condemned men are Nelito Lontok, 33, a former police chief; Domingo Reyes, 30, a former municipal official; Leonides Manabo, 30, and Rolando Tolentino, 36, all of Cavite province south of Manila.

There will be concrete proposals, replied Trudeau, but the conference should not become bogged down in a series of unrelated complaints.

"We're not going to solve everything with one meeting," he has said. "It's going to involve moving in new directions, creating new long-term policies, and gradually eliminating the psychological aspects of this alienation."

In a brief to the conference, the Vancouver Stock Exchange said it "views with concern the prospect of restriction on foreign investment.

"Foreign investment is especially important to British Columbia in view of the high capital investment per employee in resource-based industries . . . in formulating policy on investment by foreigners, we suggest that the needs of the west by given separate consideration."

Another brief, jointly presented by the Alberta, Manitoba, British Columbia and Saskatchewan federations of labor, said the absence of economic diversification is the major problem in the four western provinces.

Specific proposals in the western federations' brief included increased capital investment in secondary industry and marine services; reform of freight rates; reassessment of the Department of Regional Economic Expansion; a $2.50 minimum wage; and development of land banks for new housing.

Meanwhile, the mayors of Edmonton, Calgary, Saskatoon, Regina and Winnipeg are holding a three-day conference here coinciding with the Western Economic Opportunities conference.

Calgary Mayor Rod Sykes told a news conference that the western mayors are "very unhappy" that major cities in the West have not been invited to participate in the economic opportunities conference.

He said 80 per cent of the population of Western Canada live in cities and a conference without involving major cities in the West would be "pretty well useless."

were reported killed in South vietnam.

Friedheim said the order to establish the system came from the joint chiefs of staff and went out under the name of its then chairman, Gen. Earle Wheeler, who has since retired.

Since the fall of 1965, Friedheim said, 55 U.S. servicemen have died conducting "covert military reconnaissance activities" in Laos. He said since 1967, an additional 26 spies have been killed on secret missions in Cambodia.

Their families were told "the deaths occurred on classified missions along the border of South Vietnam," Friedheim said, and the report to congress listed all 81 deaths among U.S. battle casualties in South Vietnam.

He said the cover story, showing they died in South Vietnam, was fed into Pentagon computers and the real circumstances surrounding each death was kept in "paper files."

Most of the agents were army Green Berets, he said, but some might have been marine or air force personnel.

Hydro Use Cut Pushed

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Pacific Power and Light Co. announced Monday a major program to promote electricity conservation because of current and future energy shortages in the northwest.

Board chairman Don Frisbee said the company has moved from actively promoting use of its product to urging wise and efficient use of electric power.

"The company now is placing its effort on a conservation-of-energy program that wil be beneficia to the customer and our industry," he said.

Aimed at showing customers how they can cut down on energy consumption, the program will involve visiting residential and industrial consumers, promoting home and building insulation standards and creating public information programs.

Still in the planning stage, the program is being developed by a company task force, including consultants from academic and professional fields.

A Bonneville Power Administration (BPA) spokesman, meanwhile, said 250,000 kilowatts of interruptible power cut and not restored Friday will remain cut indefinitely.

BPA normally provides one million kilowatts of interruptible power to industrial users, but it cut half of that this spring due to low reservoir levels behind hydro-electric dams.

The remaining 500,000 kilowatts was cut Friday for 13 hours, but due to large releases of water from some dams, only half of it was restored.

The spokesman said BPA hoped to restore the other 250,000 kilowatts after maintenance work at two thermal power plants was finished, probably the week of Aug. 6, but could not guarantee that it would be able to do so.

Also Monday, Reynolds Aluminum Co. announced the temporary layoff of 80 workers from its Troutdale plant because of the reduced available power. The plant employs 760. The layoffs were effective Monday for an indefinite period.

European Sea Cadets On Island

Each contingent accompanied by an officer, there are five cadets from Belgium, 11 from Britain, five from the Netherlands, five from Sweden and five from West Germany.

They travelled today to HMCS Quadra, the sea cadet summer training base at Comox, after spending Monday in Victoria.

While in Victoria they were received by Lieutenant-Governor Walter Owen, were guests of the provincial government at a luncheon in The Empress and enjoyed a barbecue and swim at the Imperial Inn.

ment has agreed to take part in today's meeting in Washington of the Canada-United States Interparliamentary Group to discuss the pipeline question and the threat to the West Coast from supertanker traffic carrying Alaskan oil south.

"To clear up misunderstandings — I suppose — if possible," he replied.

A delegation of MP's from all parties and senators is meeting with American legislators in the Capitol under the authority of a House of Commons resolution passed by unanimous consent last week.

One of the "misunderstandings" referred to by Sharp will be the question of ownership of an oil pipeline down the Mackenzie Valley.

Ottawa's position had been that it would insist on 51 per cent ownership of any pipeline down the valley. But on July 6, in what it called a "clarification", the Canadian government informed the U.S. State Department by telephone that the 51 per cent ownership provision only applied to a gas pipeline, not an oil one.

This "clarification" was not confirmed in writing for four days and did not reach the U.S. Congress until late in the day before the Senate voted last week to approve the Trans-Alaska pipeline. The House of Representatives has yet to vote on the question.

the weather

The system responsible for the recent spell of cool, unsettled weather in B.C. will drift northward and weaken further during the next couple of days. Meantime a Pacific disturbance that on Monday appeared to be heading towards Vancouver Island now is expected to remain well offshore. Consequently, sunshine is in prospect for the southern half of the province today along with the start of a gradual warming trend.

High Seas Pollution In Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — A government bill designed to clear the cobwebs out of this country's shipping laws would extend federal power over marine pollution problems to the high seas.

The bill, introduced in the Commons Monday, would set up a maritime code aimed eventually at replacing the Canada Shipping Act and related navigation and shipping laws.

The transport department announced that the 87-page bill is only the first step in tightening federal shipping legislation.

It includes the first two books of what is intended to be a five-book maritime code. The remaining sections will be introduced later.

The first book deals with the application of law to Canadian and foreign ships and will enable better federal control over pollution problems, a government source said.

The bill would allow the federal government to extend its authority to shipping accidents on the high seas where such accident may lead to damage of the environment within Canadian waters.

The government source said there is no such provision in the law now.

Foreign ships passing through Canadian territorial waters would be exempt from federal law except for certain aspects such as environmental protection.

Under the proposed legislation, any provision on environmental matters applying to all ships includes foreign vessels passing through Canadian waters.

The government is expected to spell out the marine pollution provisions more fully in a later section of the code.

The bill also provides for greater public consultation on shipping regulations, which would be published 30 days before taking effect. This would allow time for objections. Inquiries might be held if objections were filed.

The second section of the code applies to Canadian ownership of vessels. It is designed to ensure better security of ownership, more efficient registration procedures and guarantee of Canadian management control.

Summary offences are tried in magistrate's court while indictable offences, considered more serious, may be tried in higher courts.

WORD COMING SOON ON POLICE CHANGES

Recommendations for the future development of Central Saanich police department are expected to be made this week by a mainland consultant.

Delta police chief Mervin Smith spent last week reviewing the department at the request of Mayor Archie Galbraith and council.

Smith said Monday he would have the survey in Galbraith's hands by week's end.

The Central Saanich force has had personnel problems this year, including the resignation of its chief, dismissal of a constable and a Labor Relations Board order to reinstate him with six months' back pay.

Six Win Awards

Victoria athletes have won half the premier's athletics awards.

The awards, worth $1,000 each, were given to five men and one woman—all attending university.

They were part of $31,000 in athletic awards and scholarships to 56 British Columbians made from the B.C. physical fitness and amateur sports fund.

Jim Armstrong, 2784 Shoreline, attending University of B.C. He is a provincial and national curling champion;

Murray Keating, 1706 Howroyd, attending Simon Fraser University. He holds the Canadian record for the 16-pound hammer throw;

David Mick, 1145 Heald, transferring from University of Victoria to UBC. He is a member of the Willingdon Cup golf team and winner of this year's Pacific Northwest Golf Association men's tournament.

Other winners of the premier's athletic awards are James Cicconi of Prince Rupert, Maureen Crowley of West Vancouver, and Alan Sakai of Steveston.

Margaret Mainwaring, 2555 Margate, was among six winners of full Nancy Greene scholarships worth $750. Shared scholarships worth $375 included Beverley Cox, 1622 Richardson, and George Brandstetter, 5967 West Saanich.

Victoria winners of B.C. athletic awards worth $500 each were Keith Burrell, 2760 Burdick, John Dowling, 3215 Henderson, Elizabeth Ogden, 20 Helmcken, Caroline Penn, 4045 Rainbow, and Marla Schroeder, 610 Niagara.

Healthy Increase In Housing Starts

Housing starts in the Victoria area totalled 1,572 during the first five months of this year, a 20.5 per cent increase over the 1,305 starts in the same period of 1972.

Statistics released today by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation show Saanich as the main area of growth with 592 starts in the first five months, up from 308 last year.

Meanwhile, Victoria City was down to 374 from 498, Oak Bay was down to four from 79 and Esquimalt was up to 218 from 144.

Starts in unorganized territories totalled 224, up from 167. Starts in Sidney were 79, up from 63, Central Saanich 33, up from 25 and North Saanich 48, up from 20.

While Oak Bay had only four starts during the five-month period, there were 265 units being constructed during that period that had started prior to January.

In other areas the total number of units under construction that had started prior to January were:

Of the 1,305 housing starts in the Victoria area during the first five months, 974 represented apartment units, up from 825 units in the same period of 1972.

In Saanich, the number of row housing and apartment unit starts totalled 404, up from 139 last year. Row housing and apartment unit starts totalled 350 in Victoria City, down from 479, 208 in Esquimalt, up from 129 and 12 in unorganized areas, up from 4.

Single family homes and duplex units totalled 188 in Saanich, up from 169, 24 in Victoria City, up from 19, 10 in Esquimalt, down from 19, 4 in Oak Bay, down from 6, 79 in Sidney, up from 62 and 212 in unorganized areas, up from 163.

Across British Columbia, housing starts during the first five months totalled 9,938 in 19 major urban areas studied, a 5.4 per cent increase over the 9,427 in the same period of 1972.

Evacuation Urged In Tense Cambodia

Times News Services

PHNOM PENH — The British and Australian embassies today urged their nationals to leave the Cambodian capital as air and ground activity stepped up against insurgent troops threatening the city.

The letters of notification, referring to the "uncertain" security situation inside Phnom Penh, were in the form of warnings. They were similar to those issued to nationals of at least six foreign embassies in April when severe ground fighting flared just outside the capital.

Three possibilities now face this capital, its 1.5 million inhabitants and its embattled defenders. And all of them are grim.

One is that the city will be captured by the insurgent army now at its door.

The second is that Phnom Penh will be so strangled in a siege that it will be forced to surrender unconditionally.

The third is that negotiations will end the fighting but replace the anti-Communist government of President Lon Nol with a coalition comprised of at least 75 per cent Communists.

These gloomy possibilities now are discussed openly by officials in Phnom Penh. They become more probable each day as the Communist army edges closer to the city.

Well-informed Western observers believe that, if the Communist side decides to go all out militarily after the Aug. 15 deadline for a halt in U.S. bombing, the city will surely fall.

Field reports today said Communist-led insurgents stepped up pressure on government troops trying to halt Communist infiltration up Highway 2 towards the suburb of Takhmau.

Insurgents have been able to force the government troops up Highway 2 to a point less than two miles from Takhmau, which is located about 3½ miles south of the capital.

STEPPING down at the end of this session as Conservative House leader is Gerald Baldwin, MP for Peace River. He has held the post for five years and said today: "It's getting to be a bit of a grind."

FENCE-SITTERS IN CANADA

LONDON (CP) — A sort of "high-minded liberalism permeates the editorial attitudes of most Canadian newspapers," says The Times in a special supplement on the world's press, and newspapers there "tend to be dull and to look alike."

Written by an unnamed Times correspondent — as were similar reports on the press of 23 other countries — the article says editorial writers in Canada "carefully measure the pros and cons and come down cautiously in favor of fence-sitting."

Although at times Canadian newspapers can be scathing about governments and policies it is "always in the manner of a headmasterly dressing-down."

"As a result, newspapers tend to be dull and to look alike."

Another reason for "dullness" was that in most cities and towns there is only one morning or one evening newspaper, the article says. Newspapers not only suffer from a lack of competition but have to perform the function of a local as well as a national newspaper.

"Coverage of national and international news varies in quantity and quality but rarely occupies as much space as parochial items."

The French-language press "is generally conservative" and it "pays more than lip service to Quebec nationalism but its tone and content are essentially North American."

SPARWOOD (CP) — An attempt by two armed men to steal $64,000 from a Royal Bank courier Monday afternoon failed when the bandits could not open a compartment in which the cash was carried.

Police said the men waved down the truck near this community and forced the driver, Ken Jensen, and a female bank employee, to walk away.

Bargain Prices

EDMONTON (CP) — Two truckloads of British Columbia cherries, peaches, cucumbers and tomatoes have been offered in Edmonton at about half the usual prices within the last few days and more deliveries are planned, a growers' official said today.

Hans Rhenisch of Penticton, president of United Fruit Growers, refused to say who the customers were but added that retail prices for the weekend sale were set at 15 cents a pound for peaches, 25 cents a pound for tomatoes and 40 cents a pound for No. 1 cherries in 20-pound lots.

Peaches have been selling in stores for 29 cents a pound and tomatoes for 49 cents a pound.

Rhenisch said his group aims to break the "monopoly" held by B.C. Tree Fruits over sales of all fruit produced in British Columbia.

His organization can produce better quality and sell at lower prices than B.C. Tree Fruits and still make a profit, he said, but members do not have marketing licences and cannot legally sell outside the framework of the larger organization.

Outside Looking In

The outcome of the NDP conference in Vancouver last week appears to be that for the time being the velvet hand will remain in the velvet glove. Party Leader Lewis will continue his parliamentary support of the minority Liberal government, the conference avoided alarmingly radical policy resolutions that might hang "doctrinaire albatrosses" around the party neck, and the general effect bore out Mr. Lewis' assurance that "there is no change in direction."

That, situation, of course, could change dramatically if the need arises, but the general impression created by the meetings was that the NDP, with a balance-of-power position in the national legislature, has never had it so good — and might never have it again — and so will do little to alter the status quo.

The status quo, however, includes NDP governments in three western provinces — an unprecedented springboard for national political ambitions — and the conference understandably could not forget this (as the western Liberal conference a few days ago could not either).

But oddly enough, the NDP posture on numerous national problems seems to be verging toward that of the Liberals — as persons who have lived long in close proximity are said to come to resemble each other. For instance, despite some spirited opposition, the NDP conference agreed that in forming an energy policy it would be wiser to recommend mere public control of resource industries, rather than public ownership. This gets pretty close to current Liberal thinking in the resources category.

If the general climate of the NDP national conference is compared with what provincial NDP parties are doing in office, it appears that there is a marked divergence of opinion between the national would-bes and the provincial already-ares.

That is natural, perhaps, but there could be a measure of embarrassment for the national group in, say, Mr. Barrett's hungry amassing of equity shares in various British Columbia industries — particularly some that are faced with imminent deficits. Would this sort of thing be emulated by the national NDP if it achieved governmental power in Ottawa? No, apparently says the socialists' national convention. But, as the man remarked when his parachute was slow in opening, it makes you think.

"... funny ... when the man opened it up at the store, there didn't seem to be all this much of it ..."

Play by the Rules

The Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada appear to be trying to back the provincial government into a corner. By concentrating strike action against the provincially owned Canadian Cellulose Ltd. operations in Prince Rupert and Castlegar the PPWC is saying in effect that a people-oriented government should provide a better settlement than private industry.

But the union's motives are even more transparent, considering that its rival United Paperworkers International Union has accepted the latest offer from the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau, the pulp industry's bargaining agent. If the PPWC can force the government to break away from the industry's bargaining agency and make a separate settlement it would upset the whole collective bargaining process in British Columbia. The pulp industry says, quite correctly, that it won't negotiate two different contracts with workers. And the president of the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau reaffirmed Friday that the industry had made its final offer.

The PPWC has climbed a long way out on a shaky limb. To date the government has played no role in bargaining, leaving it to the industry's bureau. But if an impasse occurred, the government might be tempted to forge a separate settlement, perhaps to save a little face and turn a profit on its doubtful ventures into private enterprise.

Since government has seen fit to enter the private realm its only course is to play by the rules which other pulp and paper companies obey in their union negotiations.

Head in the Sand

In recommending a one-year moratorium on conversions of apartments to condominiums the Capital Region Tenants' Association is really just shelving the issue. What happens when the moratorium is over? The provincial government has already amended the Strata Titles Act, giving to municipalities the authority to control conversions.

Most municipalities have taken the responsibility seriously. The Landlord and Tenant Act states that landlords converting to condominiums must give at least four months notice and pay up to $300 in moving expenses for dispossessed tenants.

By declaring a one-year moratorium on conversions — as Vancouver city council did amid a torrent of criticism — a municipality restrains the rights of property owners. In the current difficult period, with a rash of conversions in the offing, councils have responsibilities to both tenants and landlords.

In Victoria, where many elderly tenants are affected by conversions, some of the problem might be alleviated by further legislation to increase the period of conversion notice to six or even eight months, and perhaps committing landlords to find new accommodation, as some already do, for dispossessed tenants who are seriously in need of help. Declaring a moratorium is like burying one's head in the sand for a year.

JAMES H. GRAY

Hard to Change a Fixed Idea

Save for ephemeral exception, the West has been out of step with Ottawa for 40 years, from force of habit as much as from any specific gripes and grievances.

One of the current Ottawa position papers is enough to demonstrate the gulf that separates the mandarins from the kulaks. The figure filberts have easily demonstrated that the West gets more than its share of borrowed money. Of course it has done so. The flood of mortgage money into the West has provided Calgary and Edmonton with shopping surpluses of high rise office and residential space.

The fundamental Western complaint, however, has nothing to do with mortgage money. It is about the failure of the financial system to provide equity capital for western enterprisers.

Scratch a Prairie entrepreneur and he'll tell you he can raise risk capital in the United States, Germany or Japan more easily than in Toronto or Montreal. One reason, particularly with American capital, is that the Canadian tax system discouraged individual risk takers while foreign tax systems provide incentives.

Crying for Help

Western oil men, for example, were crying for help 20 years ago when they were being driven out of business by American tax dollars. The East Block ignored them, and kept on ignoring them. Then the egg-heads fashioned a double-pronged disaster for the Liberal Party — the Carter tax proposals and the Benson White Paper. They combined to make "Liberal" and "Ottawa" the dirtiest words in the language of Prairie businessmen.

On the other side of the table the Western premiers have papers on freight rates, regional secondary industry and farm policy. The latter two are mainly "motherhood" rhetoric. Let's look one last time at freight rates.

It is an article of faith in the West that we pay the freight on everything we ship out of the region and on everything we bring in. This makes for a low level of income and high cost of living. There is no problem in demonstrating that the producer pays the freight on his production. But inflation and changing merchandising practices have largely destroyed the case for much of the consumer-side argument.

Nevertheless you can still get a predictable angry reaction from the farmers by mentioning freight rates. It is something that goes back to the great depression. It is a conditioned reflex today and not a reasoned judgment.

Forty years ago, when wheat was selling for 50 cents a bushel in store Fort William or Vancouver, it cost Prairie farmers 12 to 15 cents a bushel to get it there. If grade discounts were heavy, it was quite common for a farmer to net less than a dime a bushel for his crop. The railways got more for hauling the wheat to market than the farmers got to grow it!

Despite the fact that Canadian railways moved Prairie wheat to market for less than any other farmers in the world had to pay, freight rates as a proportion of selling price were indeed a vexing issue 40 years ago. And with farm income near nothing, so were the freight charges on everything being brought in to the West.

PIERRE TRUDEAU

Today Western farm income is at an all time high. Wheat is bringing $3.30 a bushel at Fort William and it still costs only 10 to 15 cents a bushel to get it there. Today the wheat could be moved free of cost and make almost no difference to farm income.

Westerners complain that their living costs are higher than those in the East. That is confirmed whenever the DBS puts out food price comparisons of chain retail store prices. But elsewhere in the economy times have changed. For hundreds, perhaps thousands of items of consumer consumption, prices have been standardized across the country. The price of a whole range of confectionery and toiletries is the same in Toronto as it is in Winnipeg or Edmonton.

The plain truth is that freight no longer plays an important role in establishing many retail prices. A comparison of prices in a Canadian Tire Company flyer in Windsor with Winnipeg showed more prices the same than different. And sometimes, in this and other sales advertising, prices are lower for some items in the West. Eatons, for example, offered a washer to its Edmonton customers for $20 less than the Winnipeg price.

Many lines of electrical goods, office supplies, candy, etc., are priced uniformly across the country. This means that the consumers near the places of manufacture are actually paying more for the items to subsidize the purchasers at the end in the line.

The exception seems to be in British Columbia, where such things as Canadian-made fixtures, television sets., etc., are consistently higher than Prairie or eastern prices. On the other hand, Japanese cars landed at Vancouver are priced uniformly with those sold in Winnipeg.

Force of Habit

If Mr. Trudeau is assuming that he will gather political rosebuds by mollifying "Western alienation" he "should have stood in bed." Force of habit, prejudice, racial and national origins, religion, all play a part in vote-casting decisions. Gratitude for some favor granted seldom seems to.

The Liberal party in 1956-7 risked its political life to build the trans-Canada pipeline which laid the foundation for Alberta's 15-year petroleum development boom. Albertans joined the clamor that drove the Liberals from office at the next election.

No politician in Canadian history worked harder for Prairie farmers than Jimmy Gardiner. He got millions of federal money spent on soil reclamation, community pastures, etc. He closed the Winnipeg wheat pit and got the Wheat Board set up for the grain growers. Along came John Diefenbaker and that was the end of Jimmy Gardiner.

The political dividends which anybody collects from the Calgary conference will be hardly worth the trouble to Mr. Trudeau, or indeed to the Prairie premiers. It took Prairie alienation a long, long time to develop and may take a lot longer to eradicate.

It's Soybeans Not Watergate

PARIS — If he had to make a decision today on whether to run for a second term as head of the Fifth Republic, President Georges Pompidou would stand for office again when his present term expires in 1976. This means, were he to regain the position, that he would remain chief of state until he was 70 years old — in 1981.

The reason Pompidou would now opt for re-election — in this theoretical situation — is that he doesn't wish to encourage any risk of Francois Mitterrand, present head of the Socialist party and leader of a popular front coalition with the Communists, conceivably moving into the Elysee.

It is not that the President does not think Mitterrand insufficiently capable to handle the job; simply that he is a political ally of the Communists. De Gaulle's successor, like de Gaulle himself, obviously considers this dangerous for France.

But the time for decision remains three years off. Much can happen before then in the French kaleidoscope. Moreover, while Pompidou quite evidently likes to work hard, he also relishes total relaxation when he has the chance.

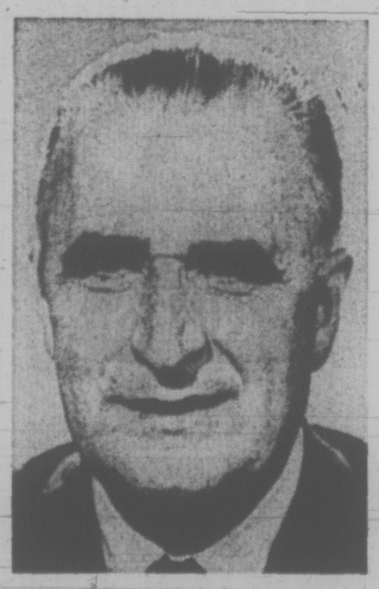
Personal Health

The President himself doesn't seem to think the question of his personal health enters into the equation. There has been much speculation in the local press on this subject because he has gained weight and suffered from several attacks of grippe.

But at the Elysee one scoffs at rumors suggesting he is seriously unwell. He certainly gives an impression of mental and physical energy, putting in long hours at his desk. There was an undoubted contrast between photographed scenes of his visit to Brezhnev in Minsk last January (when he wore neither hat nor scarf) and his trip to Iceland and Nixon (when he took the precaution of covering himself against the northern cold.)

But he assures friends he never felt better. This confidence in his own ability to continue — if necessary for eight more years — shouldering the heavy burden the Fifth Republic places on its President, is accompanied by a belief that President Nixon will be able to overcome the debilitating effects of Watergate and also carry on as an effective leader.

Naturally Pompidou refrains from discussing this subject in public. However, among associates it is said he is convinced Nixon will survive politically despite evidence of strong elements in American opinion who think the contrary.



PRESIDENT POMPIDOU
... sees Nixon survival

Pompidou seems convinced the U.S. national destiny is so strong that, in a crunch, neither the Democrats nor the Republicans would willingly risk destroying the President's authority. The American system has worked so well for two centuries that it would seem inconceivable to him that anyone could risk tearing it asunder. Therefore, it is assumed the importance and weight of the United States in world affairs will remain unchanged by the Watergate affair.

Curiously enough, the French Government gives every sign of having been much more irritated by Nixon's recent soybean embargo than worried about the flaming scandal. Soybean is used as a fodder in France. In Brittany farmers actually demonstrated in the streets when the embargo was announced.

This incident has reinforced Pompidou's own Gaullist insistence that France must insure its independence on fundamental matters so that it can never be subjected to foreign decisions on vital aspects of its livelihood. Paris wishes — during this era of global penury — to affirm a position of looking after its own interests in matters of food sufficiency just as it has sought by its nuclear policy to look after its elemental defence interests.

Symbolic Importance

Thus at the apex of the French power structure the lowly soybean is regarded as of more symbolic importance than the sordid Watergate mess. Here, where there is often a tendency to over simplify logic, Watergate is viewed as essentially a struggle between the U.S. executive and the Congress and therefore a kind of reflection of what is accepted as a permanent political problem in France under all its republics.

It is odd that even Pompidou himself is said to feel the U.S. system is more logical than that of France. He doesn't see the French as Cartesian in their politics and believes them reluctant to take the necessary steps to achieve compromises among themselves when that becomes necessary. It is against such an abstract and far-removed background that Watergate and its implications are regarded by Nixon's best French friend, Georges Pompidou.

New Critic

As a long standing supporter of the N.D.P. in B.C. I have on more than one occasion undertaken to take up pen and paper to defend them from what I considered unjust and biased criticism. And I will continue to do so.

However one cannot forever ignore the dictates of one's conscience and there comes a time when such a moral obligation must be met. Thus I find myself in a reversed role . . . that of backing the critics in regard to former Public Utilities Commission members Lyle Wicks and Findlay McKinnon. Not that I hold any personal affinity for either, but when all is said and done they are citizens of this province, politics notwithstanding. By this alone they are entitled to a fair shake.

That is one aspect.

To go a step further, by denying these people the right to sue, the government is indeed missing an invaluable opportunity to enhance its image and credibility. Such intransigence as this proved to be a key factor in the Social Credit demise and one would assume that Premier Barrett would wisely avoid similar pitfalls. The N.D.P. has introduced much refreshing legislation, controversial and otherwise, of which it can be justly proud.

Yet as a supporter of the New Democrats I would hope that such enthusiasm, achievements and power will not dull their obligation to public sensitivity.

As Arthur Twining Hadley wrote so many years ago: "True success in politics or in business lies not in the gaining of authority, but in the use of authority."

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of July 24, 1913:

Some new evidence as to why a number of the sealing schooners did not put to sea in the first few years of the twentieth century was produced at the sitting of the sailing commission today. Anton Jansen, when being examined in connection with his claim, stated that he could not get work after 1905 on the schooners. Mr. Justice Audette wanted to know why he was not signed, whether it was because he was too small or too old. He replied as follows: "There weren't as many schooners going out then and some of them weren't fit to go to sea. They were rotten and many of them had to be laid up."

How Canada Was 'Used' by the U.S. in Vietnam

By CHARLES TAYLOR
The Globe and Mail

When Canada tried to help settle the Vietnam war, Washington regarded our envoys either as mere messenger boys or else as embarrassing and untrustworthy intermediaries who were hindering U.S. plans to escalate the conflict.

Recently released portions of the Pentagon Papers make clear that Ottawa's efforts to play a peace-making role between 1964 and 1966 had little chance of success. They show that the Canadian envoys were used by the United States in a way that was more conducive to the escalation of the war than to its settlement.

The language of the Pentagon Papers gives a revealing glimpse of the arrogance of U.S. officials in their dealings with Canada's would-be peace-makers. This arrogance may have been unconscious; it was nevertheless decisive.

It is fair to conclude that in their direct dealings with their Canadian counterparts, U.S. officials were sufficiently tactful about the six trips to Hanoi undertaken in 1964 and 1965 by Blair Seaborn, Canada's delegate on the International Control Commission. Seaborn conveyed U.S. messages to North Vietnam with the blessing of Ottawa; former External Affairs Minister Paul Martin and his successor, Mitchell Sharp, maintain that he conveyed nothing that was not known to Ottawa and that did not meet with Ottawa's approval.

But these assertions of Canadian sovereignty are in vivid contrast to the way in which U.S. officials described the Seaborn missions to each other. Throughout the Pentagon Papers, there runs an implicit assumption that Seaborn was — in fact — a mere messenger boy to be briefed and dispatched at the whim of Washington.

The cool, calculating assumption that Canadians were there to be used is strikingly evident in an internal paper by Assistant Secretary of State William Bundy, dated November 5, 1964. "Secretary Rusk is talking today to (Soviet Ambassador) Dobrynin," Bundy wrote. "For more direct communication, Seaborn can be revved up to go up (to Hanoi) on the 15th if we think if wise. He is not going anyway, and we could probably hold him back so that the absence of any message was not itself a signal."

Earlier, in May, 1964, U.S. Ambassador to Saigon Henry Cabot Lodge had replied curtly to a cable signed by Secretary of State Dean Rusk which mentioned that there might be difficulties with Ottawa if Seaborn was asked to give the North Vietnamese a specific warning such as "that they will be punished."

"It is not rpt not at all necessary that the Canadians either agree or disagree," Lodge cabled back. "What is important is that the Canadians transmit the message and be willing to do that and report back accurately what is said."

Contrary to Martin's and Sharp's assertions that Canada retained control over Seaborn's messages, a state department memo prior to the Canadian's first mission stated: "The interlocutor or his government need not agree with (and) not associate themselves with the messages that are passed. The only requirement is that there be faithful transmittal of the messages in each direction."

SEABORN

This assumption that Seaborn was nothing more than a tool of Washington is contained in several other "instructions" for the Canadian envoy — the word is taken from another internal U.S. document.

Throughout these documents, there is a further assumption that Seaborn — a highly skilled and perceptive Canadian diplomat — should transmit statements of U.S. policy as his own personal opinions.

In a memo written by senior state department official William Sullivan for Rusk, it is stated that Seaborn, then preparing for his first trip to Hanoi, "should spread the word that he is puzzled by Hanoi's intentions." Another message signed by Undersecretary of State Averill Harriman states that Seaborn should convey to the Hanoi leaders an "attitude of real personal concern" over the growing possibility of direct confrontation between North and South Vietnam.

Washington regarded Seaborn as little more than their eyes and ears in Hanoi. Aside from transmitting U.S. messages, he was instructed in considerable detail to bring back political intelligence on the level of war-weariness among the North Vietnamese, on the state of the economy, on the respective influence of the Russians and the Chinese, and on possible divisions among the leaders. While it is obvious that Hanoi would assume that Seaborn would be reporting to Washington on these matters, it is debatable whether Canada should allow its peace-making envoys to be placed in such a compromising position.

In fact, Seaborn did convey political intelligence to the Americans, and it is a tragedy that they failed to pay any attention to his reports. Consistently — and with a cool and dispassionate professional skill — Seaborn told Washington that the North Vietnamese were not weary of the war or intimidated by the bombing, that they seemed united behind their leaders and that there was no evidence that they were cowed by the U.S. threats that he conveyed.

We now now that Seaborn was correct in his assessments and that Washington was glaringly wrong in continuing to escalate the conflict in the repeatedly stated belief that Hanoi would eventually capitulate. Significantly, however, the only time that the Pentagon Papers indicate a U.S. response to Seaborn's perceptions involved yet another escalation of the conflict.

After Seaborn's visit to Hanoi in March, 1965, the U.S. ambassador in Saigon, Gen. Maxwell Taylor, reported to Washington that the Canadian had found "a mood of confidence" among the North Vietnamese leaders, despite the bombings which had started in the previous month. Gen. Taylor went on to urge even heavier bombings to induce Hanoi to negotiate on U.S. terms.

In fact, the bombing raids which followed Gen. Taylor's dispatch were the heaviest in the war to that time. Circumstantially, it would seem that Seaborn's report was used to help bring about this increased destruction.

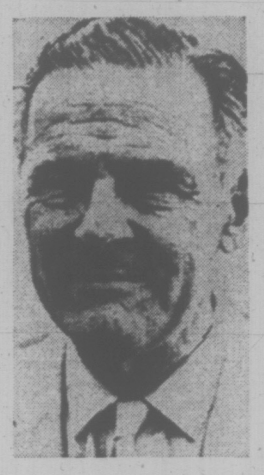
There must be similar doubts about a report to the U.S. Embassy in Saigon by Victor Moore, Seaborn's successor on the ICC. In Hanoi, Moore had secured North Vietnam's approval for the first of two peace-making missions by retired Canadian diplomat Chester Ronning.

According to the Pentagon Papers, Moore told the U.S. Embassy that Hanoi's approval was probably based on its concern over "the immense casualties which their army was encountering and would be encountering in South Vietnam."

There is no record in the Pentagon Papers of how Washington reacted to this opinion. But on the basis of U.S. moves at the time, it seems reasonable to assume that Moore's assessment only strengthened U.S. beliefs — mentioned time and time again in the papers — that Ronning's mission was irrelevant and that increased military pressure would eventually force Hanoi to capitulate.

The Pentagon Papers are quite explicit about U.S. attempts to undermine — even to sabotage — the two Ronning missions in 1966. If the issues were not so grave, these attempts would be laughable.

They reveal an almost paranoid suspicion of the Canadian initiative on the part of Rusk, Bundy and other senior officials. Whether they were quibbling over Ottawa's designation of Ronning as a special emissary with personal rank of ambassador (to which he was eminently entitled), or else sensing dire Canadian schemes to recognize China, the Americans were clearly determined to insure that his missions came to naught.



LODGE
. . . he was curt

With evident reluctance — and not a little sense of panic — Washington suspended for 19 days plans to bomb the oil storage depots in Hanoi and Haiphong, so that the escalation would not coincide with Ronning's second mission and provoke an international outcry.

It is proof of their contempt for the Canadian efforts that the Americans disregarded Paul Martin's pleas that any escalation be postponed for a suitable time after Ronning's visit. The Pentagon Papers make clear that William Bundy either lied to Martin and Ronning —or else was remarkably uninformed — when he assured them that the U.S. would not resume bombing — only one week before the Americans launched what they subsequently called "the most significant, the most important strike of the war."

We were used—there is no other possible conclusion from a close reading of the Pentagon Papers, especially those sections which were made public for the first time this month. Our attempts to promote a peaceful settlement were persistently and relentlessly frustrated by Washington to serve its own policies of military escalation and to convince world and domestic opinion that the North Vietnamese were intransigent warmongers.

These revelations about the 1964-66 period follow hard upon recent disclosures of the extent to which Washington used political pressures and outright duplicity to win Canadian participation in the International Commission of Control and Supervision, set up to supervise the shaky ceasefire in Vietnam after the Peace Agreements of last January.

Canada is now withdrawing from the ICCS after condemning its blatant futility. Hopefully this experience and the new evidence from the Pentagon Papers will make us realize that our vastly more powerful neighbor has scant respect for our views and sensibilities. We can better judge our future conduct if we have no illusions about the way in which Washington will regard our interventions on matters which touch its basic interests.

WE WERE WILLING

THE TORONTO STAR
An Editorial

So Canada didn't "take sides" in the Vietnam war. The assurance comes from Mitchell Sharp, minister for external affairs. But the official line — and this surely is it — doesn't always square with historical truth, and the Communists are not the only ones who rewrite history.

It's true that Canada was never a combatant in Viet Nam, but non-belligerence doesn't necessarily mean neutrality. Canada was far from being neutral, as Sharp indicates in saying that we didn't take sides. Of course we took sides.

From 1959 to 1971 inclusive, Canada sold the United States $2.9 billion worth of defence goods, including aircraft, components and electronic gear. Much of this material went to Vietnam. In fact, Canada did so well out of the war, that we accumulated a surplus of nearly $550 million under the defence production-sharing agreement with the United States which is supposed to keep an even balance between our military sales to, and purchases from, that country.

Nor was Canada neutral diplomatically. We were the representative of the West on the International Control Commission set up after the 1954 Geneva agreement, with Poland as the Communist member and India as the neutral chairman. And in practice, our representatives on the commission departed a long way from strict neutrality. They were alleged to have furnished military intelligence to the Americans, and Commissioner Blair Seaborn acted as a courier to Hanoi for the United States, delivering warnings of the destructive consequences of continued North Vietnamese intervention in the South.

Canada's role in the Vietnam war is defensible. We did make sincere efforts to get peace negotiations going, and an embargo on military supplies to the U.S. would have been a futile gesture unless we had also gone to the drastic length of banning food and metal sales as well.

Canada behaved like what it was, and is: An ally of the United States that chose not to engage directly in that particular war. So why pretend?

Responding to the News

By JACQUES ELLUL

(Ellul is professor of social history at the University of Bordeaux and author of The Political Illusion.)

BORDEAUX, France — The phenomenal development of the mass media has revolutionized politics. Not simply because propaganda and biased news can be so simply and widely disseminated, but by the very fact of the availability of so much information. Every day, via radio, TV and print the citizen is flooded with thousands of messages: (We will not complicate the argument by trying to figure out the differences in the ways the three media affect us.) Thus, we have to realize that the individual retains only a small proportion of these messages. European analysts have found that the average newspaper reader retains about 10 per cent of the political news he reads. That is probably fortunate; if he remembered it all, he would go mad.

This, of course, raises questions: If the reader retains 10 per cent of the political news, what is political news? What is the filtering system by which he retains certain parts of the news? Why does he remember this rather than that?

This is not a serious problem for the average citizen. He remembers what touches him closely: local news will interest him more than international news; news that directly relates to his job, for example, the imposition of new tariffs, interests him more than a discussion of general economic policy based on remote decisions made long ago.

In addition, we know that the more distant and general the issue is, so much more will the average citizen's viewpoint and opinions be based on vague ideas, feelings, and impressions rather than on facts and hard information. Indeed, precise information only nourishes and confirms his pre-judgments. In general, the citizen possesses adequate information about matters that touch his interests and concern him personally. He judges and evaluates other issues by criteria that have nothing to do with information. His choices and, therefore, his retention of certain news items rest totally on irrational ideas and feelings.

In each of us, then, these two mindsets operate on entirely different patterns. (I am hypothesizing the best of cases, namely, that the newspaper performs its function well and really furnishes the reader honest information without biased commentary.) This condition is not very serious in the case of the ordinary citizen who exerts little influence over political decision-making.

But there is another consideration that is very important. In a democracy a politician must put himself on the voter's wavelength. Otherwise, he will not be re-elected. If we stick with the traditional definition of politics — the conquest and use of power — without considering values, aims and ideal objectives, we have to realize that the politician's first questions about information are: How has the citizen been informed? What does he remember?

Which, among all the thousands of economic, social, and international events, has he understood and interpreted correctly? How can I put myself into his point of view? How can I put myself on his level, both in order to get elected and in order to express his desires and will in political action?

If the politician is brave, he may try to use power for change, bringing the mass of citizens with him. In this case, he becomes a model for the collectivity. He changes its opinions and orientation. But this raises the problem of how rigorously we interpret democracy. Do we always operate democratically? What about a government that, instead of following and expressing the will of the majority, seeks to change public opinion and persuade the majority to follow it? How could it be otherwise, with such volumes of information available? We don't even have to discuss secret information that the politician may possess. Such information is generally much less important than is imagined. A good newspaper provides all the information needed for correct political reflection and decision-making. The difficulty lies elsewhere.

I believe we must distinguish three levels of events about which political decisions are made. The most superficial are day-to-day events — the accidents which spark interest precisely because they have just happened. On a deeper level there are long-range trends — economic facts, the structures and phenomena of power and administrative growth. On the deepest level, there is the course of major, worldwide developments — demography, for example.

One responds to each of these with a different kind of opinion. On the deepest level we find the ideologues, utopians, the theoreticians. Public opinion, formed (and deformed) by the stimulus of the latest thing, operates on the most superficial level. But the politician normally must position himself between the two. He must formulate policy designed to last for an extended period, whose content must be open to thorough examination. It must fit action to the structures of society and not waver in the face of accidental developments. This presents him with two problems: first, he is not going to be on the level of his constituents' public opinion; second, he must continually evaluate the information he receives and distinguish between what has decisive political significance and what will be forgotten tomorrow.

The hardest problem is exactly that these day-to-day events tend to overwhelm us. The journalist has a duty to catalogue and transmit the greatest possible number of them. But this leads to psychological and intellectual difficulties. Because we are constantly observing what is going on here and now, we become more and more convinced that it is important; it is increasingly difficult to detach ourselves and reflect on the more enduring and decisive problems. When we succeed in doing so, we may feel that we have retreated from reality, whereas we are trying to see it from a more profound vantage. We also may miss a piece of important news. Nevertheless, it is my constant observation that a correct frame of reference is a better basis for accurate interpretation of reality than merely following events day by day.

Undigested up-to-the-minute information is not enough. We have to know what to do with it and how to utilize it. Above all, one must avoid the passion and enthusiasm aroused by passing events.

Here we must be very demanding of our politicians. We must choose those who can rise above the everyday, who do not react without reflecting, who can judge and interpret events against the background of a broad range of knowledge. They must be strong enough to resist the immediate pressures of public opinion, which may very well change in a month when another sensation comes along. Failure to recognize this can be tragic, because public opinion considers what is most spectacular to be most important, and views what has just happened as fundamental, forgetting what happened a year, or 10 years, ago.

The very mechanism of the dissemination of news leads necessarily to a gap between the political leader's judgment and the impressions of the average citizen and, by the same token, betweeen the whole political apparatus and the body of the nation.

Here we are in the presence of the most serious problem that faces a democracy. It cannot be resolved by institutions but only by a new pedagogy.

Investors Miss Out On Crisis

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

The energy crisis has raised the price of oil and gas but has been slow to return profits to stock investors.

Currently the index is at 240. One year ago it stood at 237.

The present level is above the closing index for April, May and June but below the 287.5 in January, 253.7 in February and 250.8 in March of this year.

While on a year-to-year basis the value of oil stocks has been marking time, prices and profits for companies have risen dramatically.

In the past 12 months the price of crude oil has gone up 30 per cent and some contracts for natural gas have risen 50 per cent in price.

The increased prices have been reflected in improved earnings by almost all major companies.

The Vancouver Stock Exchange, specializing in small exploration ventures, also has had a quiet oil and gas market.

There is no oil index on the Vancouver exchange. The trading pattern on oils shows a mixed pattern.

During the first six months of this year 31.7 million oil shares were traded, down from 33.6 million in the same period of 1972.

However, value of the shares traded in the first six months was $31.3 million, up from $20.9 million in the first half of 1972.

While there is an indication of increased value, the issues are mainly quoted in pennies and a rise in one year from 20 cents to 30 cents does not represent the sort of boom that could be expected over the energy crisis.

The lid is still tightly on natural gas exploration ventures in British Columbia's Peace River country where Quasar Petroleum and about a dozen tiny exploration firms have been actively drilling.

This week Quasar was down to $9.50, from a peak of 12, and its junior allies like PRP Exploration and Skat Resources were also down.

PRP is selling at $1.28, down from a high of $1.55, while at $1.55 Skat is considerably below its top levels.

Because the peak drilling season has passed, these junior companies may continue to mark time until the fall exploration work begins.

The only thing that could put excitement into the local market would be announcements by the companies of their winter results.

On both the Vancouver and Toronto markets, investors can make money on oil and gas stocks by riding the up and down swings that occur every year during the drilling and off season.

However, there is no firm indication of investors making any money out of the oil and gas shortage at this time.

57 in B.C. Attempted UIC Fraud

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Unemployment Insurance Commission reported Monday that during the first six months of 1973, 57 British Columbia residents were found guilty of defrauding the unemployment insurance fund. The cases involved overpayment of benefits totalling about $23,000 which must be returned to the fund. Fines totalling $12,000 were levied.

In most cases, the sentence was a fine plus return of the overpayment. But in several cases, jail sentences were handed down or the accused was placed on probation.

Bank Rate Adjusted

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's chartered banks have adjusted upward the interest rates they pay for money borowed in the wholesale market.

The largest increase was made Monday — to 6.87 per cent from 6.25 per cent for money borrowed for periods of 30 to 59 days.

Other increases mean that a uniform rate now is being offered for all periods from 60 days to a year. The ceiling on one-year money was last raised to seven per cent from 6.5 per cent in mid-June.

Under an agreement with the federal government last year, the banks agreed not to exceed seven per cent for one-year money without prior government approval.

Eurocan Sees End to Woes

KITIMAT (CP) — The Eurocan Pulp and Paper Company at this coastal community is beginning to emerge from the financial woods.

Mill production in one day is almost triple that of 15 months ago. Then, 500 tons of highgrade kraft and linerboard was considered a good day's work. Now the high is 1,138 tons.

Since that high was reached, more than $17 million has been spent in sorting out production problems of the two-year-old operation.

Dick Jebbink, mill manager, was cautiously optimistic about production problems and said the company hopes to be producing 1,000 tons daily by early next year. This would be 85 tons over the mill's designed capacity.

With such production, Eurocan would, by 1975, begin its climb out of red ink, "as long as market prices hold up," added Jebbink.

Eurocan is owned by three Finnish companies which have spent about $200 million on the forest development, making it Finland's largest single foreign investment. It employes 700 in logging, mill and deepsea terminal operation.

The Prime Canadian

OFC Canadian whisky is 8 years old. Picked in its prime.

At 2-years old Canadian whisky is pale, harsh, unmatured — and around 12 is darker and beginning to take on a heavy 'woody' taste. In between this time, it becomes golden, mellow, smooth and full-bodied. In our opinion OFC is the prime Canadian whisky. That's why OFC is only 8 years old. The prime time for taste, try it.

Pearce Does It All

REGINA (CP) — he ran, he passed, he kicked and he was very, very happy.

Bob Pearce, a 25-year-old Texan, proved to be a genuine triple threat for Saskatchewan Roughriders Monday night as he caught a pass for a touchdown as a wide receiver, scrambled 19 yards as a quarter-back for another major and booted a 51-yard single in the Roughriders' 22-13 Western Football Conference exhibition win over Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Normally a wide receiver, the four-year veteran from Stephen Austin College was elated in the dressing room with his performance. "My ultimate goal is to be a quarterback in pro football," Pearce said.

Pearce has spent most of his four years with the Roughriders as a wide receiver, with a brief fling at quarterback during the 1972 exhibition season., After snaring his 10-yard scoring pass from veteran pivot Ron Lancaster in the first half and adding a single on a booming punt, the 25-year-old Pearce started the second half at quarterback.

He scored on an open-field run of 19 yards after avoiding the blitzing Winnipeg linemen for his second touchdown. Pearce said he learned to scramble in university when he played quarterback behind a porus offensive line.

Pearce turned out to be the games leading rusher with 51 yards in five carries, and just missed scoring a third major on a wild scramble as the game ended. He completed three of five passes for 44 yards.

Saskatchewan coach John Payne said he was impressed with Pearce's performance, which could be a key factor when the roster is trimmed this week.

Import rookie Brian Linstrom, ticketed for the No. 2 quarterback spot before Pearce's display, was unimpressive in his second-half appearance.

'New Ruth' Centre Of All-Star Cast

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — The nation's fans will be looking for the "New Babe Ruth" — Hank Aaron — but the two men entrusted to get the 44th all-star game underway tonight are Catfish Hunter and Rick Wise, who could wind up seeing each other again in the World Series.

Set against a backdrop of a 12-storey scoreboard and a water spectacular that stretches 322 feet from tip to tip, baseball's annual showcase game begins at 5:30 p.m. (PDT) in beautiful new Royals Stadium which is part of the $70 million Harry S. Truman sports complex.

Aaron, who clouted his 700th home run Saturday night and is only 15 away from breaking the mighty Babe's record, will be the centre of attention when he tries to jack one out against Hunter, who has yielded 27 homers this season, the most by any pitcher on either All-Star team.

Encircled by newsmen at Monday's workout, Aaron took the opportunity to express his disappointment over the fact that baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn didn't wire his congratulations following No. 700.

Kuhn, when he heard of the slight, said, "I'm certainly sorry that Hank Aaron was disappointed, and I am sure he knows I am one of his biggest rooters. I want to lead the baseball celebration when he hits Nos. 714 and 715."

Hunter of Oakland Athletics and Wise of the St. Louis Cardinals, a pair of righthanders making their first All-Star starts, have led their teams into division leads after early reversals. Hunter, 15-3, has won 10 straight, while Wise, 11-5, has been a part of the Cardinals' stunning comeback from a 5-20 start.

WILLIE MAYS
... in 24th game

Also on hand is Willie Mays, who will be playing on his 24th All-Star team. Mays, probably making his last appearance in the mid-summer classic, took offence when it was suggested that he was added to the roster out of sentiment.

"First of all," said Mays, "I don't need no charity, and if I didn't come, it really wouldn't bother me. But it would hurt baseball. There are a lot of guys hitting better than me and there are a lot of 'em who aren't here."

Perhaps the most significant development in the lineups announced Monday was that Kansas City's Amos Otis will be patrolling centrefield in place of New York's Bobby Murcer for the American Leaguers. Murcer will be in left.

Football 'Cuts' Anybody's Guess

By The Canadian Press

The unkindest cut of all looms this week for dozens of Canadian Football League prospects who will be told by July 27 that they must seek gridiron employment elsewhere this season.

As coaches study films and scan rosters for clues that will make their jobs easier, players on six clubs prepare for exhibition games tonight that could dictate their professional future.

Injuries, as usual, have complicated the picture, particularly in Hamilton, where headcoach Jerry Williams is looking for a replacement at left cornerback for John Williams, a veteran who broke a leg last week in an exhibition game against Toronto.

Rookies Tim Beamer and Mac Evans are the top-ranked competitors for Williams' spot and can expect an aerial bombardment from Ottawa quarterbacks Rick Cassata and Frank DiMaggio in an Eastern Football Conference exhibition at Hamilton.

The Tiger-Cats have 42 on their roster, 10 over the limit.

In other games, Toronto Argonauts visit Calgary Stampeders and Edmonton Eskimos journey to Vancouver to meet British Columbia Lions.

Ottawa coach Jack Gotta will introduce a new prospect, Clovis Swinney, at defensive end, in a bid to increase the pressure of nimble Hamilton quarterback Chuck Ealey. With nine reductions to be made, Gotta said he is counting on the experience of Swinney, who played with Houston Oilers and New Orleans Saints of the National Football League.

Gotta also expressed satisfaction with the play of DiMaggio, who threw passes for both Ottawa touchdowns during a loss last week in Montreal.

The plans for Argo coach John Rauch are still unsettled, he said Monday, claiming no decision has been made between veteran Wally Gabler and rookie Mike Rae of UCLA in the fight for the second-line quarterback job behind Joe Theisman.

"Gabler still has a chance," said Rauch. "Who can tell what will happen?"

As middle linebacker, rookie Tom Surlas has been giving Steve Smear a tough fight, leaving Smear with the possibility he'll be shifted to defence-end.

In Calgary, the major injury is the knee ailment nursed by Jesse Mims, the explosive halfback who will not play. Despite a series of setbacks, the Stampeders, who missed the playoffs last season, are buoyed by the prospect that Peter Liske will show the form that once led him to all sorts of passing records in the CFL.

This will be Liske's first game since returning from the NFL. Of 44 players — including four who have joined the club since the start of training camp — 12 must be chopped by Friday.

The Eskimos will be forced to cut 13 players and coach Ray Jauch isn't saying whom he'll keep. Despite an injury, veteran Gene Foster has clinched a backfield berth, leaving holdovers Sam Scarber and Calvin Harrell in a battle for one vacancy.

"It's always tough," said Jauch. "This year it is more difficult than ever."

Complicating the picture for head-coach Eagle Keys of B.C. is another injury to Garrett Hunsperger, the brilliant tackle who recently suffered his fourth knee injury in five seasons. The cartilage injury will not require surgery but leaves him with braces on both knees.

Keys said Hunsperger may play tonight against the Eskimos. Also injured for B.C. are quarterback Karl Douglas, flanker Mike Leveille and split-end Slade Willis. There are still 50 players on the roster, leaving 18 — highest number in the league — to be released.

Slick running-back Munroe Eley said Sunday he will sign with B.C. this week, ending speculation he would play out his option and jump to Kansas City of the NFL.

Soccer: Time Again For Some Reasoning

The history of soccer in Victoria and yes — even B.C., is one that undoubtedly will confuse historians in years to come.

The reasoning is obvious. Even now it defies logic, understanding and plain common sense.

This time the question is simply whether Gorge Molsons and London Boxing Club of Victoria are entitled to play in the newly-formed B.C. Soccer League.

This sounds like no great problem, especially as the B.C. Soccer League, an amalgamation of the Inter-City, Mainland, and Pacific Coast Soccer Leagues, says the two Island teams are welcome and have been included in the 12-team balanced schedule.

But only two days earlier, The B.C. Soccer Commission, through its Island representative Wilf Sadler, said no. Part of that press release read: "At no time was there any official consent for Island-based teams to play in the Vancouver or Mainland Leagues . . . this ruling has been confirmed by the B.C. Soccer Commission. . . ."

In reply to which, the B.C. Soccer League Sunday issued a counter directive:

"Contrary to earlier satements released through the news media in Victoria, statements which were both unauthorized and ill timed, Gorge Molsons and London Boxing and Athletic Cub will compete in the B.C. Soccer League next season."

The B.C. Soccer League also denied it had acted outside the jurisdiction of the Commission. "The new league has been constructed within the framework of a directive issued by the B.C. Soccer Association," a press release states.

The Right to Play

Earlier, however, Sadler had stated that the Island Commission had been granted a hearing before the Commission and "once again authority previously granted was confirmed . . . with respect to the continued independence of senior soccer on the Island."

In other words, the Commission was against Island teams playing on the mainland and the B.C. Soccer League was so informed.

That's why such a little fuss has hit the fan.

Gorge and London Boxing Club (which has amalgamated with Vic West United) didn't like being told what to do, or where they could play, complained, and appealed to the Mainland League.

In agreeing to accept their applications, the league feels it is acting entirely within its rights because when the reconstruction formula for football in the province was first announced, the Commission asked only two things:

"There should be a complete amalgamation of the leagues with provision for automatic promotion and relegation;

"There be a single executive to consist in Year One of the new operation of two or three representatives from each of the participating leagues. The Commission does not want to become directly involved in the mechanics of operating the league but will appoint an observer or consultant on request."

Then comes the stunner:

'Contrary to Policy'

Now match the above with the final paragraph of the Sadler release: "the notice . . . indicating two Island-based teams had been accepted into the mainland-based B.C. League . . . was contrary to our established policy. . . ."

And also:

"This release is given with the express permission of the chairman of the B.C. Soccer Commission in the hope that all concerned will understand the sole concern of the Commission in this matter is to develop the game of soccer in B.C. to the best advantage of the majority, yet recognizing the needs of the individual areas."

That was dated July 18. It was on Sunday the B.C. Soccer League replied, as stated above, and even more: "Having complied with the wishes of the Commission, it is difficult to understand the objections now being raised over the inclusion of Gorge and London Boxing. . . both clubs want to play and should be allowed to do so without interference. It is also believed that the Victoria fans wish to see the best soccer available . . . and . . . "let us refrain from kicking the political soccer ball around and simply get on with the game."

Still confused? Don't worry. For soccer, it's normal; and it's little use asking the disputants to get together either. Their actions, sometimes, are as clear as mud.

Adanacs Keep Hopes Alive

COQUITLAM, (CP) — Coquitlam Adanacs kept their slim first-place hopes alive in the Western Lacrosse Association Monday with a 15-12 win over Vancouver Burrards.

Coquitlam now is four points back of first-place Vancouver and has two games in hand over Burrards, who have only two games remaining.

Adanacs led 5-2 at the end of the first period and 10-4 after 40 minutes.

John Allen led Coquitlam with three goals and three assists. Kevin Parsons had three goals and two assists, while Dan Piotrowski, Dave Durante and Gaylord Powless scored two goals each. Jim Aitchison, Don Cameron and Jim Rickbell each scored once.

Vancouver was led by Eastern-recruit Pat Differ, who had three goals and three assists. Al Tasker, Brian Davidson and Doug Hayes scored two goals each, and Denis Quigley, Gordie Frederickson and Rick Ornar each got one goal.

Dolphin Girls Stage Assault on Records

QUEBEC (CP) — The Canadian Dolphins Swimming Club from Vancouver has been a dominant force in Canadian swimming circles for several years now.

And they continued their domination at the Canadian swimming championships Monday as swimmers from the west coast group took all eight events, smashing five records in the process.

The Dolphin women grabbed four of the records while the men smashed the existing mark in the 200-metre freestyle relay.

The women also set a record in the 200-metre relay and had three individual marks as Leslie Cliff nabbed the 200-metre freestyle, Wendy Cook won the 100-metre backstroke and Jennifer McHugh captured the 200-metre butterfly.

Ian MacKenziie of Ocean Falls, B.C., won the men's 200-metre freestyle and butterfly and finished second in the 100-metre backstroke.

Stephen Pickell, a 15-year-old high school student, upset the favored MacKenzie in the backstroke event, marking the first time he has ever beaten his team-mate in a race.

Pickell was clocked in 59.8 seconds, while Mackenzie's mark was 1:00.07.

But it was the times registered by the Dolphin girls that drew the raves from the crowed at the Laval University pool.

Miss Cook, who established a Canadian record of 1:06.1 in the morning preliminaries, splashed to the new mark of 1:05.8. It was the fastest time registered this season by a swimmer in the event and was only 2-10 of a second off the existing world mark set by Karen Muir of South Africa in 1969.

Miss Cliff's record time was 2:09.9, eclipsing the old mark of 2:10.1 set by Mary Beth Rondeau of Vancouver in 1972.

Miss McHugh broke both the Canadian open and closed mark as she splashed to victory in 2:24.8 in the butterfly.

The women's record in the 200-metre freestyle relay was 1:53.4 compared with the old mark—1:54.5 set by the Dolphins in 1971 in Edmonton.

Players Jam Courts For Tennis Clinics

By MAX LOW
Times Staff

From the balcony, it was like a May Day celebration in Peking Monday night at the Victoria Racquet Club.

And it was all because of Mark Cox.

While the British international tennis star called the tune, 65 eager players crammed into two courts and bent this way and that way and twirled their racquets in imitation of Cox and Vancouver pro Alan Leader.

It was tennis instruction on a grand scale and it was like that all through Cox's two-day visit to Victoria as part of a tour of B.C. sponsored by Delta Hotels.

There were more than 80 youngsters learning the basics at Cox's morning clinic Monday at the Racquet Club.

And when he moved out to the new Glen Meadows Tennis Club in North Saanich in the afternoon, another 50 swarmed on the courts there.

It was like that, too, at the Oak Bay Tennis Club Sunday afternoon when Cox played exhibition matches and held a clinic.

Cox left the Racquet Club courts after spending three hours with the players Monday night, said he was pleased with the great interest and enthusiasm shown and felt many could benefit from this kind of tour.

"Even if it gets more people motivated, more people interested, then it helps," Cox said. "I know when I was small, I was always thrilled to see Wimbledon stars and wanted to go out and copy them."

At Oak Bay Sunday, Cox and Leader beat club champion Ted Davies and Marty Taylor 6-4 and Cox downed Davies also 6-4.

In Monday night's exhibitions, Cox and Leader beat Racquet Club pro Ray Aldeguer and Ernie Cockayne 6-4, Cox defeated club champion Greg Miller 6-2, and then the British lefthanderr teamed with young Leslie Ker of the Racquet Club to beat Tony Simnett and Wendy Cuppage of Victoria 6-4.

But, of course, there was no pressure on Cox and he served and stroked the ball at only medium-pace throughout. Miller gave a fine account of himself but when he came off he shook his head and said Cox "wasn't even trying."

"His weight of shot is tremendous," Miller said with admiration in his voice. "Even though he doesn't put everything into it, when that ball comes off the ground it's really moving."

When Aldeguer came off after the doubles and Miller prepared to go on for the singles, the club pro drew a laugh from the gallery of about 200 when he said:

"Good luck Greg. Play his backhand . . ."

Dale Finds New Delight In an Old Rental Club

It's a used piece that saw service as a rental club at Qualicum Beach, but the "new" driver in Dale Shaw's bag may be the answer to one of the problems encountered by our city women's champion in recent weeks.

The driver will be available for three big tournaments coming up and Dale is sorry she didn't get up to see Ernie Tate a week earlier. Otherwise, it might have been a different story in the B.C. women's championship and the interprovincial team trials at Nanaimo last week.

Dale feels driving difficulties was the big reason she didn't score well in the team trials. Still, she bounced back to easily defat Vancouver's Holly Botham in a special playoff and earn recognition as the team alternate.

The alternate role is important at the moment because Dorothy Leighton, who was named to the team along with Marilyn Palmer, Carolyn Larsen and Helen Marlatt, isn't sure she can make the trip to Charlottetown. Mrs. Leighton needs permission for more time off from her duties at a mainland hospital before she can accompany the team. The hospital's decision will determine whether Mrs. Leighton or Miss Shaw will play for the B.C. team.

The decision is expected later this week.

Regardless, Dale will head east in order to compete in the Canadian tournament. En route, she'll stop off to play in the prestigous Trans-Mississippi tournament and then, on the way back, will compete in the U.S. women's amateur championships.

Tate's old rental club has restored new confidence for the trip east.

"Ever since the first one wore out," Dale said Monday, "I've gone through several drivers but haven't been really happy with any one of them.

"Ernie has a knack of being able to pick out a club that suits you. When I went up to see him last week, I asked him for a driver. The one he picked out for me was from a rental set.

"And this one has added 20 yards to my distances off the tee . . ."

Optimists in Semis Of Ruth Tourney

Saanich Evening Optimists had to go two extra innings but they finally beat North Vancouver and the Pickard twins Monday night to advance to the semi-finals of the B.C. Babe Ruth 13-year-old baseball championships at Royal Athletic Park.

Optimists broke a 5-5 tie in the bottom of the ninth inning when a bases-loaded walk to Mike Newman forced Jay Tuson in with the winning run in a 6-5 victory.

In Monday's nightcap, Duncan was eliminated in the double-loss tournament by dropping a 17-1 decision to Vancouver Inter-Community. Vancouver counted nine runs in the fourth inning and five in the sixth.

John and Jay Pickard shared pitching and first-base duties for North Vancouver, John starting on the mound but giving way to Jeff when Optimists counted their initial run in the first. Jeff in turn was relieved by John in the ninth with the bases loaded and walked Newman on a 3-2 count to force in the winning run.

Best pitching performance of the night was turned in by Saanich's Chuck Miller, who went the entire nine innings and didn't walk a man. The righthander struck out three and yielded five hits. Steve Sutton's double was North Van's best effort.

Saanich also collected five hits, singles by Miller, Ron Campbell, Marty Brouard, Don Kent and Mike Taylor.

Inter-Community staged its nine-run uprising against Duncan on a walk, an outfield error, five singles, a double by Georgio Scremins and a triple by Roy Jukich. Winners had 16 hits in the game.

Tonight, Gordon Head Optimists meet Prince George at 6:30 and North Vancouver meets Inter-Community at 8:30 in a pair of loser's bracket games. Action continues each night at Athletic Park with the final Friday night.

Jocelyn Lovell Wins Bike Titles

WOODBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — Veteran Jocelyn Lovell of Toronto returned to prominence while a 16-year-old newcomer from Hamilton swept junior events at the Canadian cycling track championships Sunday.

Lovell, a 23-year-old veteran of international competition, won the 4,000-metre individual pursuit, the 1,000-metre time trials and sprints. Last year, Lovell won only the pursuit and placed 15th in the Munich Olympics.

Meanwhile, Robert Cramero, 16, of Hamilton, earned because of the brute strength he displayed in winning the junior sprint, pursuit and time trials.

British Columbia's B team of Ed McRea, Frank Ludtke, Brian Keast and Ron Hayman won the 4,000-metre team pursuit, beating the Manitoba A team.

Margaret Hanson won the over-all women's championship with firsts in the 1,000-metre sprints and 3,000-metre pursuit and a third in the 1,000-metre time trial won by Betty Schepems of Manitoba.

Members of the British Columbia A pursuit team included Victoria's Tom Morris, who was also scheduled to compete in the time trials, individual pursuit and a 10-mile race.

Morris will be riding with the B.C. road-racing team on Thursday and Sunday in Ontario in two national championship events — the 100-kilometre team trial and the 100-mile road race.

Following the championships, selectors will announce a six-rider road team and a six-member track team to compete in world championships in Spain in late August.

More Atrocities by Portuguese?

By DAVID MARTIN
The London Observer

DAR ES SALAAM — Detailed accounts of a fresh series of alleged atrocities by Portuguese troops in Tete province of Mozambique have been made by two West German freelance television journalists who spent five weeks in the area with the liberation front, Frelimo.

Reinhard Biermann, 27, and Ursula Pauli, 29, who are based in Dar-es-Salaam, were in the Tete province with Frelimo guerrillas from April 28 to May 31 filming a documentary about life in the liberated zones of Mozambique.

They returned from Mozambique a month before the present furor about atrocities, and although they were not looking for atrocity stories, almost every one of the 50 interviews they recorded in Mozambique contains accounts by people who suffered beatings and torture, or who witnessed massacres and murders.

Accounts of these atrocities have been kept secret until Sunday, when the film Biermann and Pauli have been editing was shown for the first time. Some of the worst stories the journalists were told came from two of the 68 children at a Frelimo orphanage in the Tete province near the Zambian border.

Cardo Dinis, 11, came from a village named Mugaza, about half an hour's walk from the Beira to Moatize railway in the area of Mutarara.

In January last year Frelimo guerrillas mained the railway and a nearby road, he said. A train was derailed and some trucks blown up, killing Portuguese soldiers. Three days later black and white troops arrived at the village. Despite villagers' denials, they accused them of laying the mines and began beating them. The boy insisted that the villagers really did not know who laid the mines, but said even if they did, they would not have said.

Dinis said, "The Portuguese said they would find out very easily if the village knew anything about the mines. They told one woman to put her baby in a maize mortar and pound it to death. She refused, so while some soldiers held her, a white soldier took a razor and began cutting her body to the bone. He slashed her breasts, stomach, arms and legs and put salt in the cuts."

The woman lost consciousness and with the blood-soaked baby still tied to her back, was dragged away into the bush. Dinis told the journalists he realized this was different from the usual beatings, and he and four other villagers slipped away into the bush. From their hiding places they watched troops at gunpoint herd all the villagers except an old woman into a grass hut. "They told the woman to set fire to it, but she shook her head and was pushed in with the other people. Then white soldiers set fire to the hut and everyone in it burned to death," the boy said.

Dinis cannot count and has no idea how many people lived in the village. He began listing names for Biermann and Pauli — his father, mother, brothers, sisters and friends. They had the impression that about 100 people lived — and died — in Mugaza.

When the troops left, the five survivors went back. Everyone was dead and all the livestock had been taken. They fled into the bush and three days later made contact with Frelimo. Today at the Kacha-Africa orphanage, Dinis has one ambition: "To become a Frelimo soldier and kill all the Portuguese. I will put mines in the street — poof they will go — and I will liberate my country."

Tambudzai Chaola, 10, has a blind eye through trachoma. She has been in the Kacha-Africa Orphanage since April. Some weeks earlier — she does not know exactly when as she also cannot count and has never seen a calendar — Portuguese troops surrounded her village in the Mucumbura area near the Rhodesian frontier where massacres are known to have occurred in December, 1971.

She said she hid in the back of a hut when the soldiers started shooting. But then she saw her uncle running and followed him. Weeping as she told her story, Tambudzai said as she ran she saw her father and sister lying near their hut. "I am sure they were dead. They had been shot."

From their hiding place in the bush the villagers who escaped watched smoke and flames from the burning huts. The objective of this raid appeared to be part of the Portuguese depopulation program in areas where Frelimo is active, forcing villagers into strategic hamlets known as "aldeamentos" so they cannot help the guerrillas. Those who resisted were shot. Those who were captured were taken to the aldeamentos.

He was working in his field one day when children came and told him the Portuguese were stealing his goats. He ran back to his house and found soldiers had taken his livestock to the middle of the village. He protested he did not want to sell the goats. But the Portuguese troops said they had no intention of paying for the goats and accused Yamoto of being a terrorist. "Then they beat me with rifle butts until I lost consciousness. When I recovered I found both my eyes had been taken out," Yamoto said. For ten months he suffered intense pain while a Frelimo doctor looked after him. Today the front feeds and clothes Yamoto and his family at a village near Kacha-Africa.

These were the worst stories that Biermann and Pauli recorded. But others give an insight into life for African civilians in Portugal's colonies.

Piu, 32, comes from the northern Cabo Delgado province. He was arrested in 1964 for selling Frelimo membership cards (at about 40 cents for life) and spent seven years in prison without trial.

People were tortured and beaten regularly, he said. Sometimes the bodies of those who died were left in the cells for days. When he was released he was restricted to a 15-square-kilometer area, initially around Port Amelia and later Makonia. He fled last year and is now receiving guerrilla training.

Twenty-one-year-old Francisco from Manicae Sofala province was one of two African deserters from the Portuguese army the journalists interviewed. He would not give his surname or home village for fear of reprisals against his family who still lived there.

In 1963, he said, he was working as an assistant mechanic at a firm named "Auto Industrial" in Vila Pery, on the main railway line from Rhodesia to the Indian Ocean at Beira. He said police arrested him and all the other young men at the firm, and they were "press-ganged" into the army. After two years he was posted to Tete, guarding military convoys supplying posts at Fingoe and Chicoa.

Francisco said both black and white Portuguese soldiers regularly burned crops in Tete to stop villagers feeding the guerrillas and to force them into the Aldeamentos. He said he had witnessed villages being burned, women raped and children having their heads smashed by being swung by the ankles against trees.

Morale in the army, he told Biermann and Pauli, was very low. There was discrimination between black and white troops with European wounded always flown out first for treatment. White recuits from Mozambique believed they were fighting for their country, but those from Portugal, where there is a virtual press blackout on what is really happening in Mozambique, received a rude shock when they found they were fighting a full-scale war and not limited guerrilla action, as they had been led to believe. Francisco, who deserted last year, is now a male nurse with Frelimo.

All the people the journalists spoke with who had been in Portuguese prisons told of appalling brutality, lack of food and medical treatment.

Daya João, a grandmother in her late thirties, her daughter and grandson, were all arrested at Luiva village and held at the prison in Tete town on suspicion of having contact with Frelimo. Daya said she was raped 20 times the day she was arrested by white Portuguese soldiers. In Tete prison they were forced to wear metal bands around their necks and at night they were shackled by these to the cell wall. When they were taken out to work in the day, they were chained together like slaves. She was raped once while she was there by an African guard.

Unborn Child Cut From Mother

Tambudzai's mother had left early that morning with other women to go to a nearby maize mill. The young girl's elder sister had already joined Frelimo as a teacher and her brother as a freedom fighter, so the survivors headed for the nearby Frelimo camp.

A patrol was sent out to try to intercept the village women. But they had already been ambushed. Tambudzai said her mother, in an advance state of pregnancy, had her belly split open and the unborn child cut out. Her body was covered with maize flour and thrown into the bush. The women had all been shot or stabbed.

Biermann and Pauli now wish they had spent more time interviewing all the children at the orphanage in detail. "But when we were in Tete the situation was very different from what it is now,' says Pauli. "We had not gone in like police officers to find these things out. We were making a documentary film trying to present all aspects of life."

The most gruesome story during the interviews they recorded came from Njinga Yamoto, about 50. In 1968 he lived in Chiuta village in Tete at a time when Frelimo's offensive in the area began.

CRASH CAUSED BY TORNADO?

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The pilot of an Ozark Air Lines plane that crashed in a St. Louis suburb thinks he flew through a tornado and is sure the plane was hit by lightning. Authorities say at least 36 persons died.

Ozark Flight 825, which originated in Nashville, Tenn., and was carrying 41 passengers and a crew of three, crashed into a wooded ravine Monday night during a violent thunderstorm.

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) said Arvid Linke, pilot of the turbo-prop Fairchild 227, radioed shortly before the crash that he believed he was in a tornado and that he had been hit by lightning.

Authorities recovered tapes of conversations between Linke and the control tower at Lambert Airport and began today to attempt to determine the cause of the crash that "lit up the sky."

A witness to the crash, Debbie Schwab, said she heard a "boom like lightning followed by more booms." Mrs. Schwab said her husband ran from their home and saw a ball of flame.

"I heard a loud crash and then another crash," said Howard Porter, a resident of the area. "It sounded like an explosion."

Porter said he leaped a fence, ran to the scene and assisted another man in removing bodies from the torn fuselage.

POWER LINES FELLED

A brief fire followed the impact at 6:45 p.m. EDT as the plane disintegrated, knocking down trees and strewing power lines in its path.

An FAA spokesman said the control tower at the airport lost sight of the aircraft on radar about a mile from the airport as it descended to an altitude of about 600 feet.

Authorities said today they had reports of eight survivors in several area hospitals.

Among the injured was Linke, who authorities said was carried from the plane's wreckage. The extent of his injuries was not immediately known.

Two giant oak trees stopped the plane's descent just short of an unoccupied gymnasium on the campus of the University of Missouri-St. Louis in suburban Normandy.

Canadian Survivor In Good Condition

PAPEETE, Tahiti (CP—Reuter) — A 28-year-old Canadian who was the sole survivor of a Pan American Airways jet which crashed into the sea near here with 79 persons aboard was reported to be in good condition today and recovering from his ordeal.

The survivor was identified as James Neill Campbell of Arnprior, Ont., 45 miles northwest of Ottawa.

Meanwhile, rescue workers, who have so far found 16 bodies, coninue their search today. There was little hope for finding more survivors.

Campbell suffered shock, chest injuries and cuts.

He told reporters from his hospital bed he heard a cracking noise before the plane began to go down. He soon found himself in water, surrounded by oil.

Greeks Free 17

ATHENS (UPI) — The Greek government today released 17 of the 83 persons accused of taking part in an abortive Greek navy coup in May, members of their families said.

Among those released were retired admirals Constantinos Engolfopoulos and Ioannis Mineos. A preliminary inquiry published by the government said they had been offered the leadership of the coup but turned it down.

The released men had been held at various military police camps in the Athens area, their families said.

The government listed 83 persons, mostly active navy officers and former politicians, including ex-premier Constantine Karamanlis, as directly involved in the plot.

It said that deposed King Constantine knew about the plot and encouraged the mutinous officers.

Hanging Debate Drags On

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Plunging wearily into their fourth overtime week of summer sittings, members of Parliament buckled down Monday to plod through more days of debate on the capital punishment bill.

Washed away were predictions on when the summer recess, three weeks overdue, will be called.

Centre of the debate now is a suggestion to hang rapists and kidnappers who murder their victims. Still to come is a proposal to apply the rope to second-time murderers and aircraft hijackers who kill.

These have been proposed as amendments to the government's hanging bill — before the House for final approval — which proposes another five-year ban on capital punishment, except in the cases of killers of on-duty policemen and prison guards.

DELAYING ACTION

One indication of how long the debate could continue was delivered to the House Monday by Social Credit Leader Real Caouette. He promised to do everything in his power to delay passage of the bill.

A retentionist, Caouette said he and his 14 fellow Social Crediters will speak "as long as possible" on every amendment proposed by other parties and will attempt a series of their own amendments as delaying tactics. The government had asked members to set a time limit on the debate in exchange for putting off the final decision until fall. However, there has been no agreement on this and Caouette said his party "won't agree . . . under any circumstances."

OLYMPIC FINANCING

Besides the capital punishment bill, the government wants passage before the House adjourns for the summer of a bill to help finance the 1976 Summer Olympics in Montreal. The bill, to authorize sale of commemorative stamps and coins and a national lottery, saw long, hot debate during committee study.

The capital punishment bill was the second piece of legislation introduced when Parliament opened in January. One MP estimated Monday that there have been 150 speeches in the House on the matter.

Second reading, approval in principle, was given in a narrow 138-to-114 vote, free of party lines, about two months ago.

FUROR RAISED

In the House justice committee, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand raised a furor by trying to amend the bill to abolish all capital punishment. His amendments were ruled out of order.

TOWERING BLAZE in Colombia's tallest building, 41-floor structure in Bogota, claimed five lives and injured 150 Monday. Helicopters landing on roof saved many but panic broke out on nearby streets as flames trapped about 200 between 12th and 23rd floors. Short circuit is believed cause of fire.

Elizabeth Williams, 40, of Toronto died April 20 in Humber Memorial Hospital, a month after a tubal ligation operation and 10 days after a second operation for removal of the sponge. The cause of death was diagnosed as septicemia — acute blood poisoning.

Coroner Ross Bennett said the failure of antibiotics to stop the infection and the fact the woman's body was unable to fight off infection also contributed to her death.

The five-man jury recommended the hospital place more emphasis on the final sponge count and the surgeon be involved in the count rather than leaving it to nurses.

Since Mrs. Williams' death, the hospital has instituted two additional sponge checks.

Dr. Bennett told the jury the sponge was left inside the woman through "human error," even though a sponge is not normally used during this type of operation.

He said Dr. Victor Kurdyak, Mrs. Williams' surgeon, might have ordered the X-rays — which eventually revealed the sponge — sooner, when his patient first complained of the abdominal pains.

Ottawa Appeals Indian Ruling

EDMONTON (CP) — The federal government has filed an appeal against the judgment of Mr. Justice William Morrow of the Supreme Court of the Northwest Territories in a case involving Indian land claims.

The appeal was filed Friday at the law courts building here, it was learned Monday, and S. Bruce Smith, chief justice of Alberta and of the N.W.T. Court of Appeal, said he expects the federal appeal could be heard at the next sitting of the territorial appeal court at Yellowknife Oct. 22.

The federal government, specifically the attorney-general, is appealing Mr. Justice Morrow's June 22 ruling that he must hear arugments in an application by 7,000 treaty Indians to file a caveat on 400,000 square miles of the north.

The caveat, a declaration and legal warning of an interest in the lands is a major step in the Indians' claim that the land actually belongs to them.

In the appeal, Ottawa says Mr. Justic Morrow did not have jurisdiction in the case, and the federal Land Titles Act does not apply in the case because the lands in question are Crown lands.

The appeal further argues that since the caveat relates to claims against the Queen the Federal Court of Canada has exclusive jurisdiction.

Ottawa attempted in June to have the whole case taken from Mr. Justic Morrow's jurisdiction, Mr. Justice Morrow ruled he had the right to ascertain the nature of the Indians' claims and rule whether a caveat should be filed.

Esquimalt Shelves Highrise Zoning

Esquimalt's newest alderman, George McCreadie, chalked up his first victory Monday night when council abandoned its plans to create two new highrise zoning categories.

Council agreed to shelve a bylaw creating the two zonings—highrise apartment and highrise apartment with ground-level stores — which was given three readings at the last council meeting.

Council decided instead to make potential highrise sites on Esquimalt Road into development areas, so land-use contracts can be negotiated with highrise developers.

McCreadie has been arguing for weeks that council will have greater control over highrise development through land-use contracts than by zoning certain lots for highrises.

At Monday's meeting he got strong support from Ald. Terry Prentice and Ald. Jim McEvay.

They defeated a motion to rezone land along Esquimalt Road between Admirals Road and Nelson to the two new highrise zonings.

Then council gave three readings to an amended bylaw, introduced by Prentice, that made the same area along Esquimalt Road a development area.

The bylaw creating the new highrise zoning categories was received and filed, and will not receive final passage by council.

Mayor Art Young was not happy with the idea of going the development area route.

"I would hate to go to a development area and put the developer . . . to that expense and two months down the road shoot down the developer because we don't like the color of the building," said Young.

McEvay said if the developer proposes a high quality building he will have no problems getting a land-use contract.

Ald. Art Mebs pointed out other municipalities have successfully regulated highrise development with zoning, not land-use contracts.

Prentice said using a land-use contract for Esquimalt's first real highrise would allow council to learn what problems are involved in allowing such construction.

All council members agreed that, one way or another, the property on Esquimalt Road should be used for highrises to help rejuvenate the municipality's central area.

Four residents living near the proposed highrise site have written council protesting the idea of high density development there.

RUSH FOR DESKS

Free desks offered to Victoria by St. Ann's Secondary School were all gone an hour after the school opened at 10 Monday morning.

Sister Sheila of the Sisters of St. Ann said that Heywood Avenue was lined with cars andtrucks full of people wanting one of the 175 old-fashioned desks with lift-up tops.

The school also has 55 desk-chair units for sale at $5 each.

Zoning Puzzle Solved

Esquimalt residents at a public hearing Monday were puzzled by council's proposed zoning changes for the Selkirk Avenue area.

Why rezone the area, between Uganda and Dingley Dell, from apartments to two-family dwelling category when council plans to allow apartment buildings there?

Simple, said Esquimalt Mayor Art Young.

"Council would like to have a little more control over the apartments," he said.

Having zoned the area down to two-family dwelling, council plans to turn it into a development area, so any developer will have to sign a land-use contract with the municipality before building apartments.

If council and the developer cannot agree on a contract, said Young, the land reverts to its original zoning.

But if the zoning is two-family dwelling, the developer can build nothing bigger than a duplex.

Final approval was given to the zoning change at a council meeting following the public hearing.

Council plans to buy or lease 25 feet of waterfront along the Gorge from any developer interested in signing a land-use contract for an apartment building.

It also may charge the developer a fee per apartment unit toward recreation lands in the municipality.

Tourist Flood Under Way

By AL FORREST, Times Staff

American tourists are expected to come to British Columbia in record numbers this year to spend money in about the only market where their dollar has not been devaluated.

The Canadian dollar has floated down with the American currency and local merchants charge a discount of one to two per cent.

Overseas, meanwhile, the value of the U.S. has shrunk dramatically, making travel in Europe and the Orient expensive.

British Columbia government tourist officials hope that big-spending Americans who were heading to the Riviera or Monte Carlo will come to B.C. instead and get more value for their dollar.

The early signs are encouraging.

—The number of cars coming into B.C. through Blaine was up 25 per cent over last year as of June 30, according to provincial government sampling.

—Government field workers, travelling extensively through B.C. this month, found motels and hotels full and a large number of American licence plates everywhere they went.

Traditionally, the bulk of U.S. tourists come from Washington State, Oregon and California.

The main negative factor worrying travel officials is the gasoline shortage, although the panic may be over now.

The gasoline scare seemed to reach a peak in May and the B.C. Department of Travel received many inquiries about the supply in this province.

British Columbia has no shortage, but many tourists were reluctant to come this far because of the uncertainty of supply in states on the way.

Now, however, Americans seem to have adjusted to restrictions on gasoline sales and are travelling far afield with little concern.

While some U.S. stations limit the number of gallons that will be sold, most of the restrictions on gasoline sales concerns the hours the station is open.

The all-night service stations are rapidly disappearing in the U.S.A. and many are closed after supper and on Sundays.

L.A. TO LONDON FOR ONLY $190

LONDON (Reuter) — A British charter company opened up the 1974 Atlantic air-fares battle Monday with an offer of a round-trip ticket between London and Los Angeles for less than $190.

The price list from a company called CPS Travel was one of the first entries in the scramble to get customers for the newly devised concept of advanced booking charters (ABC).

The ABC system started last April. It was intended to supplement—and eventually replace — the old affinity group charters.

To qualify for an ABC flight, all a passenger has to do is book three months in advance and remain at least 14 days at his destination.

The $190 fare is for a so-called "longstop" ticket, which obliges the traveller to remain at least three months at his destination in the off-season.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Khadafy Stays As Libyan Head

CAIRO (WP) — Col. Muammar Khadafy told a cheering crowd of Libyans Monday night that he has withdrawn his resignation and will remain as Libyan leader until union with Egypt is achieved.

Speaking at an emotional mass rally in the Libyan port city of Benghazi, Khadafy said the merger he has been pressing for was "inevitable" but that Egypt would have to be changed first, through a "people's revolution" such as is now under way in Libya.

The fiery 31-year-old advocate of pan-Arabism said that after the dispute with Egyptian president Anwar Sadat over the march by 50,000 Libyans into Egypt last week, an immediate union of the two countries had run into new difficulties.

As Khadafy was announcing his return as chairman of the ruling revolutionary command council, the post from which he said he had resigned June 11, President Sadat was asking Egypt to spend the rest of the summer thinking and engaging in frank and open debate about what should be done next.

Both leaders were making speeches marking the 21st anniversary of Egypt's revolution against the monarchy and the overthrow of the late King Farouk.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

An 18-year-old Sooke resident was sentence Monday to a total of 37 days in prison for driving with a suspended licence and careless driving.

Brian H. Miller was stopped on Goldstream Road June 21.

"This man has a shocking record of convictions and shows a total irresponsibility and complete disdain for the law," Judge William Ostler said in provincial court.

Millar was sentenced to 30 days for driving while disqualified and seven days for careless driving.

Leonard R. James, 18, of Duncan, was remanded to Aug. 3 for pre-sentence report and sentence when he appeared in court Monday afternoon and admitted a second charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

When he appeared earlier in the day, James admitted theft of a C and C taxi, criminal negligence, not having a driver's licence and failing to remain at the scene of an earlier accident.

The charges arose out of a series of incidents Saturday in which James collided with three cars on Government, Fisgard and Cloverdale and smashed into a hydro pole.

The final charge was laid when he failed to stop after colliding with a car at Douglas and Cloverdale.

For possession of two marijuana plants growing outside the rear door of his home on Labonne Rd., John N. Grayer, 26, was fined $100.

"Deliberate growing of marijuana must be discouraged," said Ostler.

The plants were found by police May 15.

Charles Gordon White, 19, of 3408 Seymour Ave., was fined $75 for possession of hashish when stopped by police on Beckwith Street July 20.

In traffic court, Judge Harold Alder ordered a $350 fine and three-month licence suspension for Albert John Pelkey, 25, of Saanichton, for impaired driving.

Dwight Powell, 20, of Port Hardy, was fined a total of $450 for impaired driving while his licence was suspended.

A six-month licence suspension and a $350 fine were ordered for Gaetan Rosaire Joseph Cossette, 20, of HMCS Terra Nova, for impaired driving on Blanshard July 22.

Open Space Grant Backed By Esquimalt

Open Space, like Cool Aid, has proved its worth to the community, Esquimalt council decided Monday night.

Council agreed to pay its share of a $4,100 grant to the artistic centre at 510 Fort St., which the intermunicipal committee has recommended the four core municipalities share.

Open Space has received the same negative reaction from some people that Cool Aid did in its early days, said Ald. Art Mebs, who outlined the centre's activities.

These people have viewed the centre's organizers as "long-haired, unproductive, dirty types of freaks," said Mebs.

Open Space workers have actually been working hard to fix up their old building, the upper storeys of which were closed by the fire marshal last Christmas, he said.

They are creating small shops for display of handicrafts and art, and are planning to open a coffee shop, he added.

"They've actually dug in and done a lot of work themselves," Ald. Ken Hill agreed.

In other business, council amended its zoning category for apartments to make it necessary that apartment builders reserve five per cent of their land for recreational use.

The builder must already have 25 per cent of the land for landscaping.

Council approved two requests for creation of condominiums in the municipality — a new duplex at 850 Old Esquimalt Rd., and a 31-suite condominium to be built at 935 Esquimalt Rd.

A third request, for conversion of a duplex at 1025 Colville Rd. to a condominium, was held over until council gets advice from its solicitor on condominium conversions.

Mebs pointed out that Vancouver has declared a one year moratorium on conversions to condominiums.

"My God, if they can do it I don't see why the devil we can't do it too," he said.

Wolf Pack Controls Seen

The B.C. Fish and Wildlife Branch is considering steps to control a wolf pack killing cows at Black Creek near Courtenay.

A wolf returning to feed on a cow killed by the pack the previous day was shot Saturday by game warden Gordon Gosling.

Biologist Charles Lyons said the pack has existed in the area for years but never attacked domestic stock.

"The farmer rather enjoyed hearing members of the pack howl," he said. "He even could identify them by their howl. But since they have started killing his cows, he wants some protection for his animals."

Lyons said marauding dogs kill more livestock each year than all the predatory animals on the Island.

"But whether they are wild dogs or wolves, something has to be done to protect livestock," he said.

He said the Vancouver Island wolf, considered an endangered species, is definitely on the increase in certain areas.

Ian Smith, also a B.C. Fish and Wildlife biologist, believes one of the reasons the wolves attacked the cows is the depletion of the Island's deer population.

Logging activities have stripped the valley bottoms of timber which provide shelter for deer during the winter months, he explained. This has considerably reduced the deer population — a stable diet of the wolf.

He said wolves also feed on mice, beaver and other small animals.

He said the howl of a wolf, rarely heard on the Island, is becoming more familiar.

IWA To Pay $7,000

VANCOUVER (CP) — The International Woodworkers of America, Local 1-85 at Port Alberni was ordered in B.C. Supreme Court Monday to pay $7,000 damages to six independent logging contractors as a result of illegal walkout at MacMillan Bloedel operations last February aimed at forcing independents to sign up with the union.

Mr. Justice A. A. Mackoff also granted the six independents — who are under contract with MacMillan Bloedel — an injunction, which bans the union from threatening the company with a strike, or engaging in a strike, with the aim of requiring the independents to sign an operating agreement with IWA.

The supreme court judge at the same time refused an application by the independents for exemplary damages against the IWA local.

He also dismissed an application by the independent contractors for breach of contract damages against MacMillan Bloedel.

McGeer Against Land Leasing

Provincial government proposals to lease land for housing were labelled as a return to feudalism by a Liberal MLA Monday.

Land should be sold and not leased for housing, said Pat McGeer, MLA for Vancouver-Point Grey constituency.

"People with modest income should never be forced to become lessees of anyone. That is a return to the old feudal system made more malicious by governments rather than barons being the owners," he said.

McGeer, a researcher employed by the University of B.C., was particularly critical of the government's suggested use of UBC endowment land for housing. McGeer suggested it be used as a recreational preserve "or developed to bring the highest sustaining income for educational purposes."

ILLEGAL ENTRIES ON RISE

WINNIPEG (CP) — The number of young travellers from the United States entering Canada illegally is on the rise, an official of the federal department of manpower and immigration said here.

J. N. Harder, district administrator of the department's Prairie region, said most of the incidents have occurred after the youths have been refused legal entry because they have no visible means of support.

"If a young person had $5 in his pocket and a letter from a relative in Canada indicating he would have a place to stay for a while, he would be allowed to cross," he explained.

For the fourth consecutive week, several young U.S. residents were sentenced to jail terms Monday for trying to sneak across the international border.

Judge John Enns said the jail sentences were necessary to deter further illegal entries. "Too many people are prepared to enter the country this way," he told the court.

Teacher Glut To Get Worse

WINNIPEG (CP) — Provincial educationists predict Manitoba's current over-supply of teachers will get worse instead of better.

However, better guidance of young people training as teachers is seen as one way to ease the problem.

Royden Lee of the Education department's certification and records section figures it is one of the best things that ever happened for children because it means better-qualified teachers and better applicants for teacher training.

Fatality-Free Year

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — There hasn't been a fatal traffic accident here for 12 months, a record inspector Bill West today attributed to steady police enforcement.

It was the first time in five years the city of 41,000 had not recorded a traffic fatality in a 12-month period. The last traffic fatality in the city was July 22, 1972.

Books Biased

WINNIPEG (CP) — A report prepared for the Manitoba Human Rights Commission says readers used by primary school children in the province are biased in their betrayals of both sex and race.

The books support traditional male-female roles and tend to play down the roles of women as well as members of minority groups, it concludes.

Mountie Projects

EDMONTON (CP) — The provincial cabinet has approved expenditures of $181,470 for 14 projects to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the North West Mounted Police in Alberta.

Three of the projects were approved for Fort Macleod, first home of the Mounties, who arrived in Alberta in 1874.

Outdoors Best

EDMONTON (CP) — An outdoor setting to provide therapy for mentally ill persons eliminates the stigma of the artificial environment in which traditional therapy takes place such as a desk between the patient and the therapist, an American clinical psychologist said Monday.

Gene Cummings of Seattle, formerly staff development program director for mental health programs in Washington state, was commenting on the camp now being held for 25 recreation directors and therapists from across Alberta at Entrance Provincial Park 170 miles west of Edmonton.

FEAR MOVE SAVES LIFE

Police said Dorothy Rickerd rescued Lael Hanson after the little girl dived into a pool and struck her head.

Dorothy jumped in and lifted the child to the surface. She slapped Lael in an attempt to restore breathing, then took her to a woman who gave artificial respiration on the way to hospital.

MRS. DARIN

She Beat Them Down By $47

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Saanich housewife Carol Darin bucked the system and won a tax credit on her 5094 Lakeridge home.

Having unsuccessfully protested her property assessment at the municipal court of revision and board of appeal in the spring, Mrs. Darin was told she has exhausted all means of protest until the 1974 sitting of the court.

But instead of waiting, she wrote to Premier Barrett and MLA Jim Gorst complaining of an unfair bias in the system of judging assessment appeals.

On July 11 an administrative assistant wrote to say "appropriate action" would be taken when the Provincial Assessment Commission looked into Mrs. Darin's case.

Six days later Saanich informed her the 1973 assessment on her land had been reduced from $2,680 to $2,100.

The net effect on her tax levy is about $47, which will be credited to the Darin tax notice in 1974.

"I was hoping for more," Mrs. Darin said. "I'm pleased; I take it as a start."

But she thinks the $715 total tax is still too much for the size and location of the property and she intends to continue to press for further consideration.

Mrs. Darin said all nine lots in the Lakeridge subdivision off Santa Clara, and about six others in nearby Rutley Meadows, had assessments reduced.

She thought the move may be connected with the provincial government's election campaign pledge to remove the school tax from private property.

"For the provincial government to take action, to take an interest (in her case), that's what pleases me.

"If it can happen to me and about 15 others, then it can be done elsewhere, too," Mrs. Darin said.

The basis of Mrs. Darin's complaint had been that proper attention had not been given to her assessment appeal, even though steps were followed as set out in the Assessment Equalization Act.

She said appellants are not told in detail how to present their cases and that no effort is made to research the evidence a property owner places before the court.

"They said my evidence was mostly a matter of opinion," the housewife said.

Mrs. Darin noted the assessment on her new home was higher than that of a home nearby that sold for $3,000 more than what her home had been appraised at.

She argued that her house and property, assessed at $9,190, should have been listed at $8,400.

FORMER UGLY BLOT on Victoria's waterfront, the approach to Johnson Street Bridge, received some costly but effective beautification as part and parcel of the city's recent one-way pairing of Johnson and Pandora. The $525,000 scheme, necessitating removal of old E & N station and associated clutter, opened up new vistas which the city has enhanced with plenty of greensward. Ducts for underground services accounted for large part of the total cost, and although not all services have been buried there is future provision for this. (John McKay photo.)

CAMPFIRE CURB OFF

Campfires are legal again on Vancouver Island — and probably necessary to warm campers as unseasonably cool weather settles over the province.

The B.C. Forest Service has lifted a four-day ban on campfires because cool weather and showers are expected until Friday.

The long-range weather forecast shows a return of the hot, dry weather by the weekend or early next week.

Elsewhere in B.C., campfires are still banned in the south Okanagan and near Nelson.

The forest service defines campfires as open blazes on the ground. A ban on campfires does not affect indoor fires such as in stoves at provincial campsites.

Also permitted at all times — but considered marginal cases — are open fires in containers such as barbecues or hibatchis.

Meanwhile all logging operations have resumed in central and northern Vancouver Island as the cool weather reduces the hazard.

Two Youths Rescued From Burning Wreck

A 20-year-old Saanich man saved the lives of two youths early today when he pulled them from the flaming wreckage of an overturned car.

Ivan Morris Jr., of Tsartlip Indian Reserve, West Saanich, will be commended for his action in rescuing James Magoffin, 19, of 387 Sparton, and Bill Patterson, 17, of 5699 Wallace, Saanich Fire Chief Harold Gains said today.

Police said the 1967 Firebird, driven by Magoffin, burst into flames after it went out of control and overturned on West Saanich Road near Wallace Drive at 2:20 a.m.

At that time only the engine compartment was burning.

"These guys were trying to get out of the driver's side so I pulled them out of the window," said Morris, "Pretty soon the whole car caught fire."

A fire department spokesman said both youths would have been killed had they been inside when the flames ignited the interior of the car.

The vehicle was demolished, he said.

Our City of Gardens Makes Room for Eden

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

If the raw temptations of the flesh lurk in the capital's own Garden of Eden, as they did in the original, then Victorians aren't too upset about the situation.

Nor, for that matter, are those custodians of public morality, Victoria city police.

At least, those were the indications Monday after the opening of Victoria's first sex shop, named after the place where Adam and Eve found there was more to eating apples than just eating apples.

She said there was a steady stream of customers throughout the day, most of them curiously inspecting but some also buying items from the range of merchandise, including scanty underwear and various stimulation devices.

And during the day there was a courtesy call from a couple of city policemen who "looked round, said it was very nice and then left."

With them they took copies of the Garden of Eden illustrated brochure on "Way-out lingerie," which includes such provocative apparel as "Savage Eve Bra" and "Adam's Fall Garter Belt."

Miss Delahunt said a number of customers—who included adults of all ages—told her they considered such a retail outlet was long overdue in Victoria.

She noticed no obvious embarrassment among them, and there were no indignant callers of the "keep-Victoria-respectable" ilk.

While she was talking to the Times reporter a middle-aged woman with a matronly air about her entered the store, passed some complimentary remarks and then added:

"I used to be a housekeeper for some years in so-called posh Victoria homes. The things that went on there behind closed doors. . . ." (this said with an expressive wave of the arm) "you just wouldn't believe."

"I say it's a good thing to have the subject out in the open."

Recalling the city hall controversy over the granting of a trades licence to proprietor Kelly Covin—which included a "Sodom and Gomorrah" label attached by Mayor Peter Pollen — Miss Delahunt said she believes the fuss has blown over.

"And I bet some of those who were most steamed up about it will be the first ones in here," she said.

New Valve Placed In Heart

At the same time a hospital spokesman said two of three patients undergoing open-heart surgery over the past two weeks have gone home "feeling fit and well and delighted with the results."

The third patient is also "doing well," said Dr. Ray Le Huquet, the hospital's medical director.

Jubilee's open-heart unit, first of its kind on Vancouver Island and only the fourth in British Columbia, employs a heart-lung machine to permit a special surgical team to work on a patient's heart at rest.

★

The team has performed three so-called "bypass" operations since the unit went into action two weeks ago, an operation which involves installing a tiny section of vein on the surface of the heart to carry blood around an obstruction in one of the heart's arteries.

Obstructed arteries cause the heart muscle to be starved of blood and produce heart attacks. The vein sections, taken from the patient's own leg, provide bypass routes.

Le Huquet said today's operation involves working inside the heart, installing a plastic and metal valve to replace a diseased valve which had produced a lenghy history of heart problems for the patient.

All four patients to date have been men, aged 50 to 61, two from Victoria and two from the Lake Cowichan area.

OLD-TIME CAR belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tedd of Salem, Ore., caused a few stares downtown today. The 1919 Ford roadster was restored by Tedd and is being used for a camping and touring trip. Tedd says a "Please be Patient" sign tacked on the back of the car really works.

LINEMAN SERIOUSLY BURNED

A Hume and Rumble lineman is in critical condition in Victoria General Hospital with burns suffered in an electrical accident Monday.

Ronald Callaghan, 35, of 1220 McKenzie, was working on a right-of-way on Parker Island, off Galiano Island, when the accident occurred, a B.C. Hydro spokesman said.

COX

NAILED!

A former reeve of Oak Bay was hoist by his own petard at Monday's council meeting.

Lawyer Allan Cox, representing American developer Paul Hansen, said it was impossible to meet assistant building inspector Harry Elsdon's demands that structural and mechanical drawings of Hampshire House be produced.

He said these had never been available, even when Hampshire House was built.

"Who was mayor at the time?" he was asked.

Conversion to Await Guidelines

Oak Bay council voted 4-3 Monday against allowing the conversion of Hampshire House to a condominium until guidelines are set by aldermen.

Developer Paul Hansen, a municipal judge from Utah, and his lawyer, Allan Cox, were joined by tenants in urging immediate permission for conversion of the building at 1159 Beach Drive.

Mayor Frances Elford, Ald. Douglas Watts and Ald. Norman Pimlott were in favor of allowing the conversion.

Ald. Brian Smith led the move that council draw up guidelines as quickly as possible — probably by Aug. 6 — and then "look favorably" on conversion to condominium.

The motion passed with Elford, Watts and Pimlott voting against it.

Ald. John Goult told the tenants:

"We would like to help you. We would like to do what you want us to do but we have a duty to other people in this municipality.

"If we are to have guidelines, we want to have them from the beginning."

"We have a responsibility for the municipality as a whole," Ald. Douglas McLelland said. "If the city of Vancouver has decided to take a year before taking any action, I don't think it's too much to wait two or three weeks."

He added the guidelines should be "as objective and useful as possible in general to Oak Bay."

Noting that Hansen hadn't bought Hampshire House as a "philanthropic venture," Smith said the guidelines should include registration of leases for protection of tenants and other requirements laid down by assistant building inspector Harry Elsdon.

In his report, Elsdon noted 21 defects including only 100 per cent parking, visitor parking being on the original landscaped area at the front of the building; a "house system" type of heating instead of heating for individual suites and violation of bylaws on driveway and extra parking.

Amendments passed by the legislature this spring to the Landlord and Tenant Act and the Strata Titles Act regulate conversion from apartments to condominiums but not to co-operatives.

In a condominium the apartment owner sells each apartment to a tenant. In a co-operative the owner sets up a private company and sells shares to tenants, guaranteeing them exclusive rights to specific parts of the building — their apartment.

"The tenants have been living in confusion and stress for at least 60 days," Hansen told council. "There are a great many advantages to a co-operative. My decision in April this year was to go co-operative.

"The co-operative route is really a good decision. I'm at a point where I don't just know if council is going to come up with any new conditions."

Hansen applied for permission to convert to condominiums in June. Days after the last council meeting, when council decided a building inspector's study and guidelines were necessary, Hansen inserted advertisements in the daily newspapers advertising Hampshire House as "Victoria's Finest Beach Co-operative Apartments."

Asked by Ald. Shirley Dowell if he would halt any move toward conversion to a co-operative until guidelines on condominiums had been set, Hansen said:

"I personally think that council is acting in good faith. I'm willing to delay any subsequent doings — all legal decisions — until that time."

He noted, however, that if council insisted on the heating plans being changed or his conforming to the 150 per cent parking required by bylaw "there is no way I can meet that."

Meanwhile, those tenants remaining at Hampshire House—about 13 have already vacated—will have to await council guidelines.

New Berry Crop Good in a Jam

By MARY MOORE

"We have a good crop of black currants and red raspberries shaping up. I'll be looking for your recipes for jams as I am not satisfied with mine. Diane W."

Lucky you.

RED RASPBERRY JAM

Four cups ripe red raspberries (about 2 quarts), 6½ cups sugar, ½ bottle liquid pectin. Prepare fruit by crushing thoroughly about 2 quarts fully ripe red raspberries. (If desired sieve half of pulp to remove some of seeds) Measure 4 cups into a very large saucepan. Add sugar to fruit in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat, bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once stir in liquid pectin. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into clean, hot glasses. Cover jam at once with ⅛ inch hot paraffin. Cover. Makes about ten 8-oz. glasses.

BLACK CURRANT JAM

Wash, top and tail black currants and measure 6 cups. Add 5 cups of water, bring to boil and cook gently, uncovered, until tender — about twenty minutes. Add 6½ cups sugar, bring to boil and boil uncovered for five to eight minutes or until it will jell when tested on cold plate or until when a spoonful is tipped up two drops will form and run together. Pour into sterile jam jars and coat with clean melted paraffin, adding a second coating when first is cold. Cover. Label.

Picking Your Own Poison

There are three basic methods of choosing where to go for your summer vacation: (1) Go back to where you went last year, (2) Go to the place your best friend, mother-in-law, or milkman went last year, or (3) Close your eyes and stab the map with a pin.

Obviously, your children will clamor to return to the lodge you visited last year, the attraction being that they found twenty-five cents under the bed and and met a boy named Walter Hefferman who could touch his nose with his tongue. You must point out that while the likelihood of encountering either Walter or loose change again is extremely remote, it is equally reasonable to assume that the lodge is still overpriced, understaffed, and located in the middle of a swamp.

While it is possible to take the advice of a friend who extolls the virtues of Happy Haven and urges you to "Just mention my name," the manager at best will have no idea who your friend is. Worse, deciding that your friend must be the chap who kept sticky buns in his room and caused Happy Haven to become overrun with silverfish, the manager will put you up in the one room they haven't been gotten out of yet.

Your safest bet is to choose at random from the resort ads. It is well, however, to keep in mind the following definitions:

Facing Lake: Before packing your swim fins, remember that someone in Saskatoon with the afternoon sun in his eyes is also facing the Pacific Ocean.

Unspoiled: The nearest liquor store, movie, and laundromat are thirty-two miles away and open only on alternate Monday afternoons.

I mean, who could possibly forget six inches of snow in August?

Free for the Asking

By HARRIET HART

As you grow older, your eye sight changes. This is a perfectly normal occurrence. Since only an expert can determine whether glasses will improve your vision, regular eye examinations are very important.

The folder "What is far-sightedness, near-sightedness, astigmatism" explains that these terms refer to the focus of the eye. It also stresses that thick lenses are not always an indication that the eyes are weak.

The folder explains that the eye has a natural lens of its own. This changes its focus whenever a person shifts his vision from near to far or vice versa. With age, the ability of the lens to change gradually diminishes. When this ability has been lost to such an extent that you cannot see what is close at hand but can clearly see distant objects, you have 'old age sight' or presbyopia. It occurs usually in people in the middle forties.

There are also people who do not lose their reading capacity, but who develop trouble seeing in the distance. They seldom realize that they, too, need glasses to correct their sight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20—Feb. 18): Creative endeavors are likely to succeed. Accent is on how you deal with one who affects you in emotional sense. Refuse to make doormat of yourself. One who sings the blues is probably using you. Know it and change situation.

PISCES (Feb. 19—March 20): New approach to property, security is indicated. Leo, Aquarius persons probably are involved. State needs. Set your own pace. Check details. Be sure—there is no need to sell yourself short. Smooth rough edges.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you tend to be introspective, somewhat of a perfectionist and your own worst critic. You recently have undergone spiritual experiences and your views have changed. October could be one of your most significant months of 1973. Many born under Pisces and Virgo are drawn to you.

Wedding for Show Harder to Obtain

DEAR ABBY: A high school girl wrote that she was pregnant and she and her boyfriend wanted to be married by a clergyman in a church, but neither one of them belonged to a church and they were having difficulty finding a clergyman to marry them.

You replied, "I am sure I can find a clergyman who will perform the ceremony."

Abby, the old "accommodating" view is diminishing. If a church wedding is desired, one or both parties must be active members in the church. People who refuse to support or help maintain a church should not expect to use it for a "show." A Christian wedding ceremony is an act of worship which is based on faith.

The attitude of more and more people is to call on the clergy and use the church facilities for "hatch, match, and dispatch" (baptism, marriage, and funerals) — but the clergy and lay leaderships of our churches are not going to play games with non-members, non-believers and inactive members. After all, there are other places where people can marry, and other persons who are qualified under the law to perform marriage ceremonies.—William Ennis, Pastor St. Mark's Lutheran Church.

DEAR ABBY: A high school senior is pregnant, and can't find a minister to marry her, though she is very much in love with the baby's father and would like a church wedding.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormons) takes a very strong stand against premarital sex, but we try to remember the words of the Saviour, "He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone" and, "Neither do I condemn thee: go, and sin no more."

We believe that the proper thing to do under the above circumstances is to get married so that child can have a name, and I am sure any L.D.S. Bishop would be very happy to perform the ceremony and give them a lively wedding and his blessings.—Leonard Tolman.

DEAR ABBY: I feel that I must write to defend those three ministers who refused to marry that pregnant high school girl.

After nearly 40 years as a minister's wife I know something about people who don't want to contribute anything to a church, but they expect the minister and church to help them out when they need something.

Of course, the church does not belong to the minister, neither does it belong to these two immature individuals to use their own selfish reasons.—Western.

DEAR ABBY: My heart ached for those youngster who wanted to be married by a minister but couldn't find one who would marry them because they didn't belong to his church.

With so many of our young people turning away from religion, you would think a minister would jump at the chance to bring them into the fold.

If they can't find a minister to marry them, they should consider a judge. At least it would be legal. Also, a sea captain has the authority to legalize a union. Have they considered that?—Loves Children.

DEAR LOVES: After having been told to go jump in the lake by so many ministers, they might indeed find a sea captain the ideal one to tie the knot.

Secretaries Protest Rating

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal government secretaries are demanding more attention and expanded opportunities in the public service.

The five-month-old Association of Public Service Secretaries presented a brief to Treasury Board President C. M. Drury calling for more secretary training programs and an end to the traditional practice of rating secretaries according to the positions of their bosses.

Spokesmen for the association said their brief got a warm reception from John Carson, chairman of the Public Service Commission, and from Dr. Katie Cooke, chairman of the government's advisory council on the status of women.

But from Drury, the man who pays the government's bills, representatives of the group feel they got a poor hearing. He made no commitments.

In fact, some of his comments were discriminatory and "downright insulting to women", one source said.

In their brief, the association, which has about 200 members, said the merit system restricts career opportunities and allows for no special pay to encourage good work.

It suggests an immediate re-evaluation of the 15,000 federal secretarial jobs and salaries and an appraisal of the secretary's value as part of the management team.

The association also wants a policy that would protect higher level secretaries from losing their positions when reorganizations occur in government and when incoming officers insist on bringing along their secretaries.

Any policy should also allow employees to move, without penalty, if personality conflicts with bosses force a change.

Managers and supervisors should also be made aware of the potential of their secretaries, the association says, arguing that training for executives should include measures to alter their tradtional attitudes.

Courses for the secretaries themselves should be offered and include administrative, supervisory and communication training, the association maintains.

"Such a policy would go a long way toward enhancing the group and open it up to greater achievements and satisfying career possibilities."

The association wants specialized language training courses for secretaries, specially for unilingual Anglophones, that would include grammer shorthand and spelling.

Their brief says that secretaries have many varied, individual skills that are often overlooked because they are regarded as typists.

Prairie Suffrage Aired

EDMONTON (CP) — "They never dreamed they were making history."

The comment sums up the frustrations of Julie, 25, and Cathy, 18, two Edmonton women searching for historical material to complete an Opportunities For Youth (OFY) project — a booklet on Prairie suffrage.

In trying to trace the role women played in political movements on the Prairies and how they won the right to vote, Cathy and Julie often found that their subjects apparently thought nobody cared about what they were doing.

Margaret Lewis, Alberta's first woman factory inspector in 1917, was known for her stirring speeches — but Julie and Cathy found she only spoke "off the cuff."

They did manage to find documents belonging to Emily Murphy, Alberta's first woman magistrate. They were in the province's public archives, gathering dust in a box on the floor.

Cathy and Julie, who don't want their last names used because the project is a collective effort, wrote several newspaper articles last winter on prairie suffrage.

They obtained an OFY grant this summer so they could search for additional information in books, letters, speeches, taps and interviews.

Non-Lawyer Divorce Aide New Breed in California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A number of California couples are undertaking a new do-it-yourself project—divorce.

Like many do-it-yourself projects, this method of marriage dissolution can come with a "kit," complete with instructions.

Some couples handle the divorce by themselves. But many are turning to a new breed of businessman, the non-lawyer divorce consultant. These persons provide assistance to the couple, usually at much lower fees than lawyers demand.

In effect, a couple seeking a divorce can complete all the necessary arrangements by purchasing the do-it-yourself kits from consultants.

The consultants appeared about the same time as more liberal divorce codes that have made it relatively easy in many states for consenting couples to end their marriage.

In 1969, Governor Ronald Reagan' signed California's divorce reform bill, which technically replaced divorce with "the dissolution of a marriage." It also did away with the practice of blaming one partner in the marriage for the breakup by providing "irreconcilable differences" as a catch-all cause.

In 1969, the final year under the old law, California issued 73,318 divorce decrees. The next year it jumped to 107,307. New Jersey granted 26,289 divorces in 1971 when divorce laws were relaxed, nearly twice the 14,236 granted the year beofre.

Although the number of do-it-yourself divorces is unavailable, an official survey in Los Angeles County shows 3,432 during a selected month of 1972, compared to 1,408 for the same month in 1971.

Two of the largest companies in California which sell marriage dissolution knits—a complete package of forms, samples and instructions—are the Wave Project, which has 18 offices, and the California Divorce Council, which has nine.

Le Flinn, one of the owners of the California Divorce Council, and Hubert Parker, who opened the council's Riverside office, both have misdemeanor cases pending on charges of practising law without a licence. Flinn also is accused of advertising legal services by a non-lawyer. A similar charge against Parker has been dismissed.

"There's a very thin line there," he said. "I don't hink we've crossed it."

Sherman said one way his workers stay on the legal side of that line is through the use of a book he has written, How to Do Your Own Divorce in California.

"Since the book is protected under the First Amendment and was written by an attorney, Wave Projects just refer people with legal questions to the book instead of answering those questions themselves," Sherman said.

The California Divorce Council also has a copyrighted book but it is not sold commercially. It can only be obtained in the marriage dissolution kits, which the council sells for $55.

The Wave Project also charges $55 for its kits. The fees do not include filing charges.

In Nevada, a 39-year-old hotel engineer was fined $800 last December after being convicted on eight counts of practising law without a licence. Del Brandon, 39, had been selling do-it-yourself divorce kits for uncontested cases for $77.63.

However, Clark County District Attonrney Roy Woofter said he would not have prosecuted if Brandon merely had sold the kits. He said he prosecuted because Brandon gave legal advice.

"Lawyers are angry because we're taking their candy away and telling people that in uncontested divorces attorneys aren't really necessary if people are advised how to fill out the forms," Sherman said. He said most lawyers charge at least $350 to handle divorces.

Lawyers argue that their service is well worth the fee. Michael James, a Corona, Calif., lawyer, said property problems are the major source of trouble if a couple tries to complete a divorce without a lawyer.

Boys Need Men

OTTAWA (CP) — Little boys need male teachers so they can develop good self concepts, says Bayne Logan, an assistant professor at the University of Ottawa.

All boys are handicapped from the time they start school because they develop more slowly than girls, he says. Male teachers are able to make them feel more comfortable.

"The influence of the teacher is simply awesome. I've just completed a doctoral thesis to show there's no other school influence to compare with it."

He wants to conduct a study of the influence of men in the primary grades but has hit a snag. There aren't enough male teachers in the lower grades to provide a valid sample for research.

Logan thinks school boards should offer merit pay to primary teachers as a means of attracting more men.

"The primary grades are the most important in a child's entire school career. Here he is either made into a student or broken."

Late July Best Time For Sowing Pansy Seed

Pansies are simple flowers. Seldom do they feature in sophisticated patterns or designs. You won't come across them as table flowers at formal dinners, but if you do they are likely to hold the attention against the most sparkling of after-dinner speeches.

Consider pansies as annual plants or at best biennials. Sow the seeds in July of a choice strain, and the results will delight you. Late July is about the best time for sowing pansy seed. It must be fresh, and the new crop is ready by this time. Try to get Swiss Giants, Maple Leaf Giants, or Western Giants if looking around locally for seeds.

The plants like the cool growing weather that is ahead, making fine healthy plants by October. Our long cool springs are much to their liking, bringing the plants into bud and so to perfection of bloom by the end of May into June.

The largest and best flowers are borne by the plants in their first blooming before hot dry weather commences.

To get down to requirements: the final planting place must be prepared with leafmould humus, screened through a coarse sieve, and be open to at least morning sun. Dappled tree shade in summer is quite suitable, or an open site in shade.

Pansy seeds are sown outdoors, or you can sow in a prepared flat to keep outdoors in sun or shade as necessary.

Use a mixture of screened leafmould with some sand for drainage. Sow in rows two inches apart for ease of handling the seedlings. Cover the flat with a piece of sacking tacked to a frame so that you can lift it for inspection and watering.

Keep the flat in a mostly shaded place. As the seeds sprout and seedlings appear take off the cover, remove the flat gradually into a more open place but not into hot sunshine.

Never have the soil completely dried out, nor allow it to be continually wet.

Give normal seedling care until the first true leaves appear. Then it will be time to move them into good soil either in other flats or in a prepared small piece of ground where you can shade them from the hottest sun until the cool fall days.

There should be no check in the young growth of pansies if you expect to have plants the size of small teacups by the end of September when you finally plant them into the places where you want them to flower.

Don't put fertilizer into the soil at any stage or growth will be soft and liable to frost damage. In April you can water them with a solution of alginure as a spring tonic.

Home saved pansy seeds will not produce the same flowers as the plants from which the seeds were taken. They will be a hodge podge of their ancestors. And seeds more than a year old are uncertain in germination. This is why we specify new seeds of a good strain. The results are worth the added expense.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

The story is told of the duplicate bridge player who was wearing a hearing aid. During the second round of play, he became the dummy. He had difficulty hearing what card his partner (his wife) was calling for. Finally she became annoyed and said: "If you'd take that thing out of your ear, maybe you could hear me."

One of the opponents was irked with the way the poor man was being treated. He was about to say something when the wife explained, "He's listening to the Green Bay Packers game on a transistor radio he has in his pocket. I had to agree to this to get him to play bridge tonight."

In today's deal, dummy's play of the cards was beyond reproach — but the same could not be said for declarer's play. The hand came up in a rubber-bridge game.

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

Upon winning the opening lead with the board's ace of spades, declarer cashed the ace and nine of clubs, East discarding a spade on the latter lead. Then came a diamond to South's ace — and West discarded a spade. While declarer was now able to get to dummy via the heart ace to finesse once against East's diamond jack, all he could make were four diamond tricks. Thus he incurred a needless defeat at his grand-slam contract.

From the very beginning, it should have been apparent to declarer that he needed five diamond tricks to bring home his contract; and the only thing that could hurt him would be a bad break in diamonds. As is evident, the bad break was there — but it could have been overcome in simple fashion.

After winning the opening spade lead, a diamond should have been led to South's ace. When West would fail to follow suit, dummy would be reentered via the club ace. Another diamond would then be led, and the finesse taken against East's known jack. Entering dummy again with the club nine, a second diamond finesse against the jack would be taken. Declarer would now have his grand slam.

As declarer actually played the hand, he deprived himself of a club entry to dummy, an entry that was vitally needed to take two diamond finesses.

Scarecrow: Sensitive Film About Bumming

By WAYNE HARDING
Times Staff

Michael Schatzberg's new film, Scarecrow, is a sensitive contribution to the anthology of literature and movies about bumming around — a fine old American tradition.

There is a little bit of Huckleberry Finn here, a little bit of Going Down the Road, a little bit of Midnight Cowboy.

Scarecrow does not really offer much more, other than some fine acting by Gene Hackman and Al Pacino who play a couple of bums making their way across America propelled by a vague dream of making it in the car wash business and by a propensity for getting into trouble.

Hackman is an ex-con who values loyalties, lives buy his own rules and likes to get into fights. He is a brute and a philosopher all at once.

Pacino is his impish sidekick whose lesson is that making people laugh will solve all problems.

Writer Garry Michael White has drawn some fine lines in his description of these not-too-hard-to-find personalities. This sensitivity to them and to others caught at the bad-luck end of North American society comes through with clarity.

The only real flaws occur when the writer and the director get carried away with their own insight. Finding uncommon truths in common sights is fine, but there are moments in Scarecrow when we are required to linger just a little too long on the kind of banter that goes on in a tavern, in a conversation over a supper table, on the coy games friends play to test each other's loyalties, on a guy trying to make out with a girl.

But it doesn't happen often.

Photography is by Vilmos Zsigmond, who has turned technical skill into creative expression in several fine films in the past five years. He does it again in Scarecrow.

Gov't Career? Stay Away, Strachan Warns

WASHINGTON (AP) — A young former White House staff member, asked to give young people in the United States advice on public service in light of Watergate, said Monday: "Stay away."

Gordon Strachan, 27 when he joined the White House staff in 1970, startled the Senate Watergate committee and the hearing room with his blunt advice after Senator Joseph Montoya (Dem.—N.M.) had set him up for an expected moment of uplifting philosophy.

After Strachan had acknowledged how pleased and awed he was to join the White House staff, Montoya said:

"Now because of Watergate, many young people are writing to us, to the different members of the committee, expressing great consternation about the future of our country, and also saying that public service is not as attractive as before Watergate.

"In other words, they are greatly disappointed, and feel let down in their expectations. The Gallup poll indicates this. Now going back to your original concepts of public service and the motivations which moved you in this direction, and subsequently your soldierly obedience to instructions from your superiors and your falling into the Watergate pit, what advice do you have for these young people?

"I believe they want to hear from you. Will you expand on that?"

"Well," said Strachan, "this may not be the type of advice you can look back and want to give. My advice would be to stay away."

The hearing room sat silent for a moment, then gradually broke out into giggles and then a gale of laughter.

"I think you have answered it very well," Montoya said after a pause.

Then they all went to lunch.

Ugly Man's Loneliness Is Over

PHILLIPS

TORONTO — Donald Kennedy, who died Monday when he was hit by a train on a crossing, led a sad and lonely life because of a facial disfigurement caused by a childhood disease, his friends say.

The 45-year-old Toronto man always walked with his head down to try to hide the hundreds of welts on his face. His posture may have contributed to his death, reports indicate.

"He was a very ugly man," said bartender Patrick O'Reilly, "but he was also one of the best guys I ever knew."

LONDON — Princess Anne's fiance is now Capt. Mark Phillips, 24, not lieutenant, the British defence ministry announced Monday. It said Phillips' promotion, which takes effect immediately, means a pay increase of $2.50 a day to $6,731 annually.

Phillips spent the weekend with Princess Anne at the European show jumping championships at Hickstead. The ministry said he would return to his unit — the Queen's Dragoon Guards stationed near Hanover, Germany — before becoming an instructor at the Sandhurst Military Academy next February.

He and Princess Anne are to be married in Westminster Abbey Nov. 14.

BANGKOK, Thailand — Former prime minister U Nu of Burma left for the United States today after more than five years of unsuccessful efforts from neighboring Thailand to topple the government of his homeland.

The 67-year-old Nu had been under pressure from the Thai government in recent months to leave because of his involvement with Burmese rebel groups operating from Thailand.

Informed sources said Nu, accompanied by one of his sons, was expected to stop off in Korea and Japan before continuing on to the United States, where he has accepted a lecture invitation from New York University. Beyond that his plans were unknown, the sources said. But there were reports that Washington has given Nu permission to live in the United States.

HAMILTON — Anne Catherine Munro, a Canadian missionary to India for 43 years, died at her home. She was 84. After graduating as a registered nurse fdom Winnipeg General Hospital, Miss Munro went to India in 1919 as a medical missionary with the Canadian Baptist Overseas Missionary Board.

DAR ES SALEEM, Tanzania — A car driven by President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania collided with a truck, but Nyerere escaped injury. Nyerere was on his way to a beach house outside the capital, and had a police escort with flashing lights, but the truck driver apparently did not see it and pulled into the path of the president's car, witnesses said.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc. for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call.

German Exports Climb

BONN (WP) — The prophecies of doom voiced by West German economists and manufacturers for German exports in the wake of upward revaluations of the mark have thus far turned out to be Cassandra cries.

Exports "made in Germany," despite the higher prices demanded in many nations for the expensive mark-valued products, still showed a 20.9 per cent increase for the first five months of 1973 compared to the same period in 1972. Exports to the United States, which businessmen expected to be hardest hit because of the dollar depreciation, climbed instead by 18.2 per cent.

West German businessmen, however, are still skeptical of the unexpected export boom. Even West German Finance Minister Helmut Schmidt commented recently: "There's something scary about it."

Indeed, a comparison of statistics for April and May has led the German-American Chamber of Commerce in New York to speculate that long-term German export trade with the United States will suffer. To substantiate its predictions, the organization this week cited a four per cent decline in German exports from April to May, despite a remarkable increase over the previous May figures.

Exports to the United States in May this year amounted to $440.65 million, up from $397.15 million in May 1972. The April figure in 1973, however, had been $488.2 million.

"It's still too early to say," said Hans Haupt, Deutscher Industrie-Und Handelstag trade expert. One month's statistics, agreed Werner Flandorffer, export trade counsellor of Bonn's economics ministry, are not sufficient definition of a trend.

The explanations offered in Bonn for the unexpected export spiral are: The worldwide business boom, the inflationary climate, German profit cutting, and Germany's traditional reputation for service and technological quality.

In addition, the experts say, up to 60 per cent of Germany's exports are on long-term contracts for capital goods (heavy machines, complete factories, automobiles, chemical products) and substantial revaluation-induced export decreases may take many months to become evident.

Although Volkswagen has sold 25,000 more cars in the U.S. so far this year than in the same period last year, the outlook is said to be gloomy for Germany's largest exporter. The least expensive Beetle on the U.S. market costs $2,299 — about $300 more than a Ford Pinto.

"We're selling against our profits," said VW's Rudolf Malitz, "and it's entirely because of the mark revaluation. If the dollar sinks one pfenning, we have a profit loss of 10 million marks (about $4.3 million using a mark exchange rate of 2.3 marks per dollar). VW production costs also rose this year, partly through a 12 per cent increase in worker's wages.

Because of the dollar depreciation and rising costs in domestic production, Volkswagen is considering the establishment of an assembly plant in the United States. "But the dollar parity changes daily, so that every day you have to make new calculations," said Malitz. He predicted Volkswagen would not make a decision until the end of 1973.

At Daimler-Benz in Stuttgart, the luxury Mercedes manufacturer, total exports have climbed 15 per cent in the first five months of 1973, against a 1972 export increase of 17.6 per cent.

Rowers Injured In Crash

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — An accident which caused injuries to 11 members of the Quebec province rowing team today may force the team out of this month's Canadian rowing championships.

The van carrying the team went out of control on Highway 401 near Bowmanville, 10 miles east of here and rolled over.

Ontario Provincial Police said 10 team members were treated in hospital for minor injuries. One member, Michel Riandeau of Boucherville, Que., was admitted for multiple fractures, including a possible skull fracture. His condition was reported as serious.

The team was en route to St. Catharines, Ont., for the July 26-29 championships.

League Sets Starting Date

SASKATOON (CP) — The Western Canada Hockey League opens Oct. 4 and ends March 29, president Ed Chynoweth has announced.

Each of the 12 teams have been scheduled for 68 games, with equal numbers at home and on the road.

Kamloops, the league's newest entry, is to start play at home against the Calgary Centennials. The Saskatoon Blades are to play the Bombers in Flin Flon and the Swift Current Broncos are scheduled against the Wheat Kings in Brandon.

$6000 Given Company One

Victoria's Company One has received a $6,000 operating grant from Canada Council.

The company's artistic director Carl Hare said Monday the grant will be used to produce a "science fiction event involving a variety of media."

LIFE EXPECTANCY AGAIN INCREASES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Average life expectancy of Americans increased to an all-time high last year but deaths due to the biggest killer — heart disease — also went up.

The centre for health statistics said in an annual report the average life expectancy of Americans advanced in 1972 to 71.2 years. No male-female breakdown was provided.

However, the incidence of fatal heart disease went up 0.8 per cent last year, climbing from 358.4 per 100,000 persons in 1971 to 361.3 in 1972, the report said. Heart disease deaths numbered 741,010 in 1971 and 752.450 in 1972.

The agency said there were more deaths due to heart disease in the age groups 15-24, 45-54, and 75-84.

Natural Gas Prices Pinch Kootenays

CRANBROOK (CP) — East Kootenay industrial users of natural gas are already feeling the pinch of higher prices, the British Columbia Energy Board was told Monday.

Duncan Stewart McIntosh, vice-president of Columbia Natural Gas Ltd., said domestic and commercial users are likely to feel the higher prices before the year is out.

Canadian-owned Columbia, which distributes gas to East Kootenay centres, obtains its supply from an Alberta company and Westcoast Transmission Ltd.

McIntosh told the commission, resuming its hearings into B.C.'s natural gas industry, that the rising costs are caused by new purchase contracts the Alberta utility made with Alberta producers.

Because residential and commercial consumers are on prices the B.C. Public Utilities Commission has approved, the prices cannot change without an application, which McIntosh said the company expects to make because its costs are rising every month.

Columbia expects to take 60 per cent of its gas from the Alberta company, Alberta and Southern Gas Co. Ltd., by next year.

FORT ST. JAMES (CP) — This village of 1,800 will ask the provincial government to grant a new sewage treatment facility to protect Stuart Lake from pollution when a neighboring trailer park and residential area get sewers, Mayor Hank Klassen said Monday.

★

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The British Columbia Railway line north of here was restored to service Monday following a train detailment and fire Saturday which burned seven tank cars of fuel.

CASTELGAR (CP) — A local of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada which served 72-hour strike notice Friday on Canadian Cellulose Co. here, now has served a 10-day strike notice.

The 10-day notice—retroactive to Friday—replaces the 72-hour notice.

Don Lanksail, president of the Pulp and Paper Industrials Relations Bureau, had said Friday the companies were considering disputing the legality of the 72-hour strike notice, served here and in Prince Rupert. He said the contract now in force calls for 10-day notice to be given either side for a strike or a lockout.

★

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia commercial fishermen landed $7.9 million dollars worth of fish in June, compared with $7.3 million in June, 1972, fisheries service figures show. The landed value for the first half of 1973 is $22.6 million, up $5.6 million from the first half of 1972.

★

QUESNEL (CP) — A 40-bed extended care unit attached to Baker Memorial Hospital here was officially opened Sunday and hospital board chairman Mrs. Inez Jacques termed the unit a giant step forward in the delivery of health care to the region. The unit will not be available for occupancy until the end if August.

LOGGING FIRM WINS TAX FIGHT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan of the B.C. Supreme Court ruled Monday a 1969 transaction by which the federal government acquired timber rights on a tract of land in Mt. Revelstoke and Glacier National Parks from a British Columbia company was not a "sale."

His decision means Kicking Horse Forest Products Ltd. does not have to pay the $341,987 British Columbia logging tax and interest on the $2,107,125 it received for the transfer of its logging rights to Ottawa.

W. A. C. Bennett, B.C.'s then minister of finance, affirmed in 1971 the assessment under the B.C. Logging Tax Act and levied the tax of $316,068 plus $25,910 interest. The firm appealed this to the B.C. Supreme Court.

Trustee Attacks School Administration

School trustee Henry Grube said there is no order in schools because "top educators don't want discipline and they don't want learning."

In a motion presented to the board, Grube said there would be a far better learning situation if excessive freedom and noise-making were severely curtailed.

He said those district elementary principals not administering schools in line with board policies, or not wishing to do so, must be advised to follow board policy.

Board members passed Grube's motion, but his recommendation for disciplinary action against students was set aside until the board "can figure out how to translate it into action and then enforce it."

Grube said pupil control in some elementary schools is "so completely lacking students with impunity can leave the classrooms."

Special Plumber Strike Spreads

VANCOUVER (CP) — A strike by a group of specialized plumbers in the Greater Vancouver area spread to two more construction projects Monday but the plumbers left gaps in picket lines at city hall to allow civic workers to return to work.

Pickets representing 34 specialized plumbers involved in a contract dispute with heating and ventilating firms tied up work Monday at the new Crystal Swimming Pool and at the site of a new office tower being built in the Bentall Centre, both in Vancouver's West End. They also continued picketing five other construction projects and city hall.

The plumbers, who install controls for heating and ventilating systems, went on strike June 20 against one company and were locked out five days later by four other firms. Members of the Plumbers, Pipefitters and Steamfitters Union, the men are seeking a new contract in negotiations with the Toronto-based Pneumatic Control Council. A union spokesman said no talks have been arranged with the companies.

On Friday, the plumbers threw picket lines around city hall and some 1,000 civic workers lost a day's pay when they refused to cross the lines. Following negotiations with representatives of the city hall employees' association, the plumbers left some city hall entrances clear Monday in order to enable the civic employees to report for work.

CP Air Streamlines

VANCOUVER (CP) — CP Air announced Monday it will install its own multi-million-dollar computerized reservations system by late 1975.

An International Business Machines computer, located at CP Air's operations centre at Vancouver International Airport, will store and process data for communications in seconds with agents sitting before cathode-ray tube displays at offices and airport counters across the continent.

Overseas and Mexico offices will be connected with the system by teletype.

"The point has been reached where future volume of business warrants the change to a computerized system," G. E. Manning, vice-president of customer service, said in a prepared statement.

Manning said the trans-continental company's boardings will approach two million passengers this year and are expected to be about 2.4 million by 1975.

Secret Spy Raids Bared

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The U.S. defence department disclosed today there were secret intelligence operations led by Americans into Cambodia and Laos throughout most of the Indochina war.

When Americans were killed in the operations, their families were told they had died in South Vietnam, Pentagon spokesman Jerry Friedheim said.

As late as June 20 this year, the fact of the operations was concealed in a report to Congress, he said.

At the same time, U.S. Defence Secretary James Schlesinger said that secret bombing raids over Cambodia in 1969 and 1970 "were authorized at the highest level" and Sen. Stuart Symington, acting chairman of the senate armed services committee, accused the Nixon administration of supporting the air war in Cambodia with millions of dollars obtained from congress "under false pretenses."

Sen. Harold Hughes, a former air force officer, was even more blunt: "The fact that these massive military operations and widespread falsifications of official reports could be kept secret so long," Hughes said, "convinces me that in this jungle of secret warfare and official deceit, there are uncharted depths, perhaps more frightening than what has yet been disclosed, to be brough to light."

The Cambodian disclosures, coming in the midst of the senate Watergate hearings, posed the threat of another major White House scandal.

Schlesinger conceded that erroneous information was given to members of Congress. He said this was a mistake. He said accurate records were kept of the Cambodian bombing for those who had a "need to know."

But Schlesinger said the information on the strikes, identifying South Vietnam targets, was fed into a data bank for use by personnel in charge of logistics, replacement of ammunition and the like.

When queries came from Capitol Hill, he said, through error "the answers were pumped out from the data bank."

"There has been no usurpation of civilian authority," Schlesinger said. "Military officials have meticulously followed the orders of civilian authorities."

Schlesinger discussed the secret raids on Cambodia border sanctuaries with reporters after testifying before Senate appropriations subcommittee on a controversy over 3,630 attacks by B-52s on communist sanctuaries in Cambodia for 14 months prior to May 1, 1970.

Sources estimated the total cost of the secret raids was about $150 million.

Friedheim, meanwhile, said a report to Congress June 20 had indicated that 81 Americans who actually died in Cambodia or Laos originally

Canada Rebuffed U.S. Offer

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp admitted Monday that Canada rebuffed American offers to negotiate on a Mackenzie Valley Pipeline as an alternative to the Trans-Alaska line.

He said in an interview that the Canadian government was prohibited "by law" from accepting the U.S. offer to negotiate on pipeline guidelines on a government-to-government level.

Sharp also agreed with a statement made Monday by a high U.S. State Department official that a Canadian delegation which visited Washington in May of last year stressed that it was not proposing the all-Canada route down the Mackenzie Valley as an alternative to the Alaskan proposal.

Julius Katz, deputy assistant secretary of state in charge of internation relations, had said earlier that a controversial letter his department wrote to the U.S. Congress on June 22, declaring that Canada has no strong current interest in a Mackenzie Valley pipeline was based on the department's experience with the Canadian government over the preceding four years.

Senator Walter Mondale (Dem.—Minnesota) has charged that the letter was a "massive misrepresentations" of the Canadian position.

Katz said Monday a prior agreement between governments was necessary to cover such points as future export taxes, access to the line for Canadian oil, as well as ownership and control.

He said that in 1970 Washington proposed such an agreement to "increase the energy interchange between the U.S. and Canada."

"The Canadians were unreceptive and at every point those efforts were rebuffed," he said.

"Well certainly," Sharp said Monday. He stated that the Canadian government has no authority to negotiate on a Mackenzie Valley line since by law the National Energy Board has to approve any applications for such a line.

"We could not negotiate — we were prevented by law from doing so," the external affairs minister said. It was because of this, he added, that the Canadian government in its discussions with the Americans has tried to get the Americans to apply to build a line through Canadian territory.

He said that the Canadian government made it clear to the U.S. government that it would welcome such an application.

Sharp was asked, if everything is up to the NEB, why the Liberal minority govern-

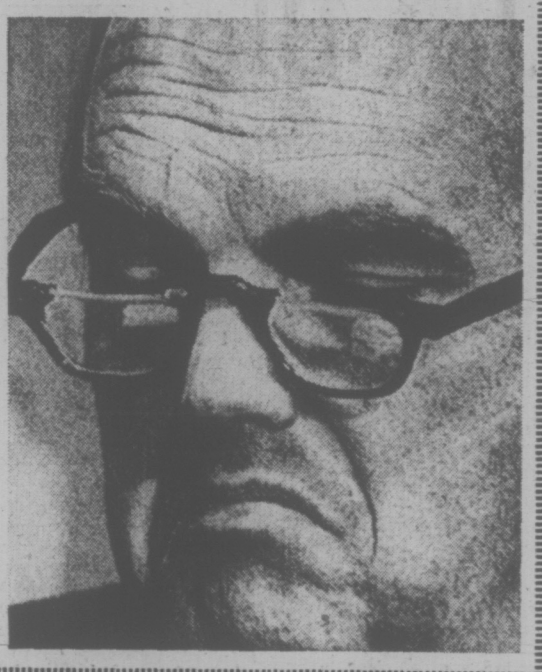
Dean Lied—Ehrlichman



WASHINGTON (AP) — John Ehrlichman today quoted President Nixon as saying in March that the 1971 Ellsberg break-in was "a vital national security inquiry" well within his constitutional powers and obligations.

Nixon said last May 22 that he didn't authorize the break-in, didn't know about it until recently, and would have disapproved it if brought to his attention.

Ehrlichman denied trying to hide the incident from FBI agents investigating last year's Watergate burglary and wiretapping, saying he had been told that the justice department already had the information.

He said the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist was a proper way to track down those who had betrayed government secrets, said any government official would understand that and keep the break-in confidential, and said even the public would agree if only news media would properly inform them of all the facts.

Testifying before the Senate Watergate committee, Ehrlichman also accused ousted White House counsel John Dean in general terms of lying to the committee.

He said the White House relied on Dean to supply information about the Watergate scandal.

"I do not suggest that we were all just too busy to have noticed," President Nixon's former domestic adviser said. "We did notice and we kept informed through John Dean on the assumption that he was giving us complete and accurate information.

"Let's be clear: I did not cover up anything to do with Watergate. Nor were Mr. Dean and I keeping steady company during all those weeks."

Ehrlichman described as "falser than all the other falsehoods" Dean's testimony that there was an overriding

Ferries Running Late

B.C. ferries were an hour behind schedule but sailing hourly and handling all the traffic this morning in a labor dispute involving ships' engineers.

Ferries manager Monty Aldous said only the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen run was affected this morning.

Peter Marshall, Victoria representative for the B.C. Government Employees Union, said the dispute involves engine checks by engineers before the start of each shift.

Engineers must undertake the check before sailing and come in 20 minutes ahead of shift to do it, said Marshall. Aldous said the engine checks are normal procedure and should only take five to 10 minutes.

Marshall said the 20-minute early start has been going on for some years and the issue has not been resolved in past negotiations.

The ferry authority wanted the matter referred to a committee but when the men heard this, they decided to take "spontaneous action" in protest Tuesday.

Aldous said today the request for such a committee came from union representatives and was accepted by management.

He said no one in the marine industry pays overtime for a change of shift and management could not find "anyone in any industry" paid overtime on a change in shift where there are 24-hour shifts as there are on most ferries.

"Since the memorandum of understanding under which we negotiate makes provision for the appointment of the neutral referee, whose decision is final and binding on all parties, to rule on items where there is a deadlock, we suggested turning the matter over to such referee for such a decision," Aldous said.

"We are still prepared to take such action and abide by the decision."

'Hinterland' Role Over in West: PM

CALGARY (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau served notice today that the "national policy" established a century ago by Sir John A. Macdonald no longer applies to Western Canada.

This means that the federal government recognizes that the West no longer is a "hinterland," designed merely to provide raw materials to serve Central Canada, he told the opening session of the conference on Western Economic Opportunities.

The prime minister agreed with the contention of the four western premiers that the old federal policy meant that western progress was unevenly spread and "narrowly-based."

Although giving no details, he indicated several federal proposals to be made during the three-day conference: A program for further processing of resouces before export; changes in the transport system to promote more balanced western economic growth; new measures to stabilize agricultural income; more aid to small business; methods to enable westerners to develop regionally-based financial institutions; and greater opportunities for western input into federal decision-making.

FOUR OBJECTIVES

Trudeau listed four objectives for western development:

—A broader range of employment opportunities.

—Greater concern by all levels of government for the individual westerner.

The western summit began today with Trudeau and the four regional premiers sitting around a horsehoe-shaped table to swap ideas and proposals.

The premiers have all said they want action, not merely general solutions for the distant future.

PICKET LINE BETTER THAN HIS COOKING

PORT HARDY (CP) — Loggers employed by MacMillan Bloedel took to the picket line here Monday when they saw who was in the cookhouse.

A company spokesman explained the loggers have been complaining about the quality of food served them by a relief cook in the camp kitchen while the regular cook was on holiday.

The spokesman said the regular cook, who was due back for breakfast Monday, missed his plane and when the 180 loggers saw the relief cook still there they walked off the job and set up a picket line waiting for the regular cook to arrive.

The men went back on the job today when the regular cook turned up.

French Planning H-Test: Papers

PARIS (UPI) — French military experts plan to set off soon a new and powerful nuclear explosion in their Pacific testing grounds, possibly using a hydrogen warhead, it was reported today.

Two newspapers — the mass circulation France-Soir and the conservative Le Figaro — said France planned to follow up last Saturday's test of a low-yield nuclear triggering device with the explosion of a hydrogen warhead.

"A new nuclear test might be carried out tonight," France-Soir said. "It is reported to be a megaton charge, probably an 'H' bomb."

New Zealand naval observers estimated the size of the first explosion at five kilotons, the equivalent of 5,000 tons of TNT.

Reports reaching Papeete, Tahiti, said the French naval squadron policing the seas around the Mururoa Atoll test site will remain on station, strengthening reports a seuond blast would come shortly.

Military sources in Paris said the current test series was needed — despite widespread protests in France and abroad — to perfect a trigger for hydrogen warheads to be used aboard atomic submarines.

Food Prices Zoom in U.S.

Times News Services

Shoppers paying 73 cents for a dozen eggs at the start of President Nixon's new economic plan paid as much as $1.19 a dozen in New York City stores today.

Eggs, chicken and pork prices soared in many parts of the country Monday, the fourth day of Nixon's Phase IV economic program. There was some evidence shoppers were stocking up, in anticipation of even greater price increases to come.

Food prices have increased slowly since last Wednesday when Nixon announced the new plan which allows the food industry to pass along increased production costs to the public.

Eggs were up 12 cents a dozen in Salt Lake City and Kansas City, 10 cents in Washington, New York, Houston, Oklahoma City and Austin, Tex., nine cents in Boston, eight in Seattle and Los Angeles. Six in Atlanta and Dallas and five in Pittsburgh.

Poultry prices also rose quickly.

The price for whole frying chickens jumped from 59 cents a pound to 70 cents in New York City; from 59 cents to 79 cents in Columbus, Ohio.

In Pittsburgh, chicken prices were up 10 cents a pound, Boston six cents, Atlanta four cents, and Chicago two cents. In Dallas, however, uncut chicken prices dropped—from 55 cents last week to 40 cents Monday.

The manager of a Tom Thumb market in Dallas said shoppers were stocking up on groceries.

"They wiped out the meat counter yesterday," he said. "We will be back in business today but they sure wiped us out yesterday. I wouldn't say it was a panic but there was a certain fear of shortage. In some cases they spent hundreds of dollars."

Meanwhile in Canada, a spokesman for Canada Packers said Monday in Edmonton the price of bacon will continue to rise as long as consumers are prepared to buy it.

Bacon, now selling at $1.19 a pound is expected to increase to $1.49 this week as meat prices reflect the removal of the price freeze in the United States, he said.

Commenting on estimates bacon prices in the U.S. would reach $1.79 a pound within 30 days, Robertson said it was not "unrealistic and it all depends on the consumer."

"If he'll pay, that's where the price will go."

MRS. DARIN

She Beat Them Down By $47

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Having unsuccessfully protested her property assessment at the municipal court of revision and board of appeal in the spring, Mrs. Darin was told she has exhausted all means of protest until the 1974 sitting of the court.

But instead of waiting, she wrote to Premier Barrett and MLA Jim Gorst complaining of an unfair bias in the system of judging assessment appeals.

On July 11 an administrative assistant wrote to say "appropriate action" would be taken when the Provincial Assessment Commission looked into Mrs. Darin's case.

Six days later Saanich informed her the 1973 assessment on her land had been reduced from $2,680 to $2,100.

The net effect on her tax levy is about $47, which will be credited to the Darin tax notice in 1974.

"I was hoping for more," Mrs. Darin said. "I'm pleased; I take it as a start."

But she thinks the $715 total tax is still too much for the size and location of the property and she intends to continue to press for further consideration.

Mrs. Darin said all nine lots in the Lakeridge subdivision off Santa Clara, and about six others in nearby Rutley Meadows, had assessments reduced.

She thought the move may be connected with the provincial government's election campaign pledge to remove the school tax from private property.

"For the provincial government to take action, to take an interest (in her case), that's what pleases me.

"If it can happen to me and about 15 others, then it can be done elsewhere, too," Mrs. Darin said.

The basis of Mrs. Darin's complaint had been that proper attention had not been given to her assessment appeal, even though steps were followed as set out in the Assessment Equalization Act.

She said appellants are not told in detail how to present their cases and that no effort is made to research the evidence a property owner places before the court.

"They said my evidence was mostly a matter of opinion," the housewife said.

Mrs. Darin noted the assessment on her new home was higher than that of a home nearby that sold for $3,000 more than what her home had been appraised at.

She argued that her house and property, assessed at $9,190, should have been listed at $8,400.

FORMER UGLY BLOT on Victoria's waterfront, the approach to Johnson Street Bridge, received some costly but effective beautification as part and parcel of the city's recent one-way pairing of Johnson and Pandora. The $525,000 scheme, necessitating removal of old E & N station and associated clutter, opened up new vistas which the city has enhanced with plenty of greensward. Ducts for underground services accounted for large part of the total cost, and although not all services have been buried there is future provision for this. (John McKay photo.)

CAMPFIRE CURB OFF

Campfires are legal again on Vancouver Island — and probably necessary to warm campers as unseasonably cool weather settles over the province.

The B.C. Forest Service has lifted a four-day ban on campfires because cool weather and showers are expected until Friday.

The long-range weather forecast shows a return of the hot, dry weather by the weekend or early next week.

Elsewhere in B.C., campfires are still banned in the south Okanagan and near Nelson.

The forest service defines campfires as open blazes on the ground. A ban on campfires does not affect indoor fires such as in stoves at provincial campsites.

Also permitted at all times — but considered marginal cases — are open fires in containers such as barbecues or hibatchis.

Meanwhile all logging operations have resumed in central and northern Vancouver Island as the cool weather reduces the hazard.

Two Youths Rescued From Burning Wreck

A 20-year-old Saanich man saved the lives of two youths early today when he pulled them from the flaming wreckage of an overturned car.

Ivan Morris Jr., of Tsartlip Indian Reserve, West Saanich, will be commended for his action in rescuing James Magoffin, 19, of 387 Sparton, and Bill Patterson, 17, of 5699 Wallace, Saanich Fire Chief Harold Gains said today.

Police said the 1967 Firebird, driven by Magoffin, burst into flames after it went out of control and overturned on West Saanich Road near Wallace Drive at 2:20 a.m.

At that time only the engine compartment was burning.

"These guys were trying to get out of the driver's side so I pulled them out of the window," said Morris, "Pretty soon the whole car caught fire."

A fire department spokesman said both youths would have been killed had they been inside when the flames ignited the interior of the car.

The vehicle was demolished, he said.

Our City of Gardens Makes Room for Eden

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

If the raw temptations of the flesh lurk in the capital's own Garden of Eden, as they did in the original, then Victorians aren't too upset about the situation.

Nor, for that matter, are those custodians of public morality, Victoria city police.

At least, those were the indications Monday after the opening of Victoria's first sex shop, named after the place where Adam and Eve found there was more to eating apples than just eating apples.

★ ★ ★

She said there was a steady stream of customers throughout the day, most of them curiously inspecting but some also buying items from the range of merchandise, including scanty underwear and various stimulation devices.

And during the day there was a courtesy call from a couple of city policemen who "looked round, said it was very nice and then left."

With them they took copies of the Garden of Eden illustrated brochure on "Way-out lingerie," which includes such provocative apparel as "Savage Eve Bra" and "Adam's Fall Garter Belt."

Miss Delahunt said a number of customers—who included adults of all ages—told her they considered such a retail outlet was long overdue in Victoria.

She noticed no obvious embarrassment among them, and there were no indignant callers of the "keep-Victoria-respectable" ilk.

While she was talking to the Times reporter a middle-aged woman with a matronly air about her entered the store, passed some complimentary remarks and then added:

"I used to be a housekeeper for some years in so-called posh Victoria homes. The things that went on there behind closed doors. . . ." (this said with an expressive wave of the arm) "you just wouldn't believe."

"I say it's a good thing to have the subject out in the open."

Recalling the city hall controversy over the granting of a trades licence to proprietor Kelly Covin—which included a "Sodom and Gomorrah" label attached by Mayor Peter Pollen, Miss Delahunt said she believes the fuss has blown over.

"And I bet some of those who were most steamed up about it will be the first ones in here," she said.

New Valve Placed In Heart

At the same time a hospital spokesman said two of three patients undergoing open-heart surgery over the past two weeks have gone home "feeling fit and well and delighted with the results."

The third patient is also "doing well," said Dr. Ray Le Huquet, the hospital's medical director.

Jubliee's open-heart unit, first of its kind on Vancouver Island and only the fourth in British Columbia, employs a heart-lung machine to permit a special surgical team to work on a patient's heart at rest.

★

The team has performed three so-called "bypass" operations since the unit went into action two weeks ago, an operation which involves installing a tiny section of vein on the surface of the heart to carry blood around an obstruction in one of the heart's arteries.

Obstructed arteries lead the heart muscle to be starved of blood to nourish it and produce heart attacks. The vein sections, taken from the patient's own leg, provide bypass routes.

Le Huquet said today's operation involves working inside the heart, installing a plastic and metal valve to replace a diseased valve which had produced a lenghy history of heart problems for the patient.

All four patients to date have been men, aged 50 to 61, two from Victoria and two from Lake Cowichan area.

OLD-TIME CAR belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tedd of Salem, Ore., caused a few stares downtown today. The 1919 Ford roadster was restored by Tedd and is being used for a camping and touring trip. Tedd says a "Please be Patient" sign tacked on the back of the car really works.

LINEMAN SERIOUSLY BURNED

A Hume and Rumble lineman is in critical condition in Victoria General Hospital with burns suffered in an electrical accident Monday.

Ronald Callaghan, 35, of 1220 McKenzie, was working on a right-of-way on Parker Island, off Galiano Island, when the accident occurred, a B.C. Hydro spokesman said.

Cause of the accident is not known.

COX

NAILED!

Lawyer Allan Cox, representing American developer Paul Hansen, said it was impossible to meet assistant building inspector Harry Elsdon's demands that structural and mechanical drawings of Hampshire House be produced.

He said these had never been available, even when Hampshire House was built.

"Who was mayor at the time?" he was asked.

Conversion to Await Guidelines

Oak Bay council voted 4-3 Monday against allowing the conversion of Hampshire House to a condominium until guidelines are set by aldermen.

Developer Paul Hansen, a municipal judge from Utah, and his lawyer, Allan Cox, were joined by tenants in urging immediate permission for conversion of the building at 1159 Beach Drive.

Mayor Frances Elford, Ald. Douglas Watts and Ald. Norman Pimlott were in favor of allowing the conversion.

Ald. Brian Smith led the move that council draw up guidelines as quickly as possible — probably by Aug. 6 — and then "look favorably" on conversion to condominium.

The motion passed with Elford, Watts and Pimlott voting against it.

Ald. John Goult told the tenants:

"We would like to help you. We would like to do what you want us to do but we have a duty to other people in this municipality.

"If we are to have guidelines, we want to have them from the beginning."

"We have a responsibility for the municipality as a whole," Ald. Douglas McLelland said. "If the city of Vancouver has decided to take a year before taking any action, I don't think it's too much to wait two or three weeks."

He added the guidelines should be "as objective and useful as possible in general to Oak Bay."

Noting that Hansen hadn't bought Hampshire House as a "philanthropic venture," Smith said the guidelines should include registration of leases for protection of tenants and other requirements laid down by assistant building inspector Harry Elsdon.

In his report, Elsdon noted 21 defects including only 100 per cent parking, visitor parking being on the original landscaped area at the front of the building; a "house system" type of heating instead of heating for individual suites and violation of bylaws on driveway and extra parking.

Amendments passed by the legislature this spring to the Landlord and Tenant Act and the Strata Titles Act regulate conversion from apartments to condominiums but not to co-operatives.

In a condominium the apartment owner sells each apartment to a tenant. In a co-operative the owner sets up a private company and sells shares to tenants, guaranteeing them exclusive rights to specific parts of the building — their apartment.

"The tenants have been living in confusion and stress for at least 60 days," Hansen told council. "There are a great many advantages to a co-operative. My decision in April this year was to go co-operative.

"The co-operative route is really a good decision. I'm at a point where I don't just know if council is going to come up with any new conditions."

Hansen applied for permission to convert to condominiums in June. Days after the last council meeting, when council decided a building inspector's study and guidelines were necessary, Hansen inserted advertisements in the daily newspapers advertising Hampshire House as "Victoria's Finest Beach Co-operative Apartments."

Asked by Ald. Shirley Dowell if he would halt any move toward conversion to a co-operative until guidelines on condominiums had been set, Hansen said:

"I personally think that council is acting in good faith, I'm willing to delay any subsequent doings — all legal decisions — until that time."

He noted, however, that if council insisted on the heating plans being changed or his conforming to the 150 per cent parking required by bylaw "there is no way I can meet that."

Meanwhile, those tenants remaining at Hampshire House—about 13 have already vacated—will have to await council guidelines.

Secret Spy Raids Bared

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The U.S. defence department disclosed today there were secret intelligence operations led by Americans into Cambodia and Laos throughout most of the Indochina war.

When Americans were killed in the operations, their families were told they had died in South Vietnam, Pentagon spokesman Jerry Friedheim said.

As late as June 20 this year, the fact of the operations was concealed in a report to Congress, he said.

At the same time, U.S. Defence Secretary James Schlesinger said that secret bombing raids over Cambodia in 1969 and 1970 "were authorized at the highest level" and Sen. Stuart Symington, acting chairman of the senate armed services committee, accused the Nixon administration of supporting the air war in Cambodia with millions of dollars obtained from congress "under false pretenses."

Sen. Harold Hughes, a former air force officer, was even more blunt: "The fact that these massive military operations and widespread falsifications of official reports could be kept secret so long," Hughes said, "convinces me that in this jungle of secret warfare and official deceit, there are uncharted depths, perhaps more frightening than what has yet been disclosed, to be brough to light."

The Cambodian disclosures, coming in the midst of the senate Watergate hearings, posed the threat of another major White House scandal.

Schlesinger conceded that erroneous information was given to members of Congress. He said this was a mistake. He said accurate records were kept of the Cambodian bombing for those who had a "need to know."

But Schlesinger said the information on the strikes, identifying South Vietnam targets, was fed into a data bank for use by personnel in charge of logistics, replacement of ammunition and the like.

When queries came from Capitol Hill, he said, through error "the answers were pumped out from the data bank."

"There has been no usurpation of civilian authority," Schlesinger said. "Military officials have meticulously followed the orders of civilian authorities."

Schlesinger discussed the secret raids on Cambodia border sanctuaries with reporters after testifying before Senate appropriations subcommittee on a controversy over 3,630 attacks by B-52s on communist sanctuaries in Cambodia for 14 months prior to May 1, 1970.

Sources estimated the total cost of the secret raids was about $150 million.

Friedheim, meanwhile, said a report to Congress June 20 had indicated that 81 Americans who actually died in Cambodia or Laos originally

Canada Rebuffed U.S. Offer

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp admitted Monday that Canada rebuffed American offers to negotiate on a Mackenzie Valley Pipeline as an alternative to the Trans-Alaska line.

He said in an interview that the Canadian government was prohibited "by law" from accepting the U.S. offer to negotiate on pipeline guidelines on a government-to-government level.

Sharp also agreed with a statement made Monday by a high U.S. State Department official that a Canadian delegation which visited Washington in May of last year stressed that it was not proposing the all-Canada route down the Mackenzie Valley as an alternative to the Alaskan proposal.

Julius Katz, deputy assistant secretary of state in charge of internation relations, had said earlier that a controversial letter his department wrote to the U.S. Congress on June 22, declaring that Canada has no strong current interest in a Mackenzie Valley pipeline was based on the department's experience with the Canadian government over the preceding four years.

Senator Walter Mondale (Dem.—Minnesota) has charged that the letter was a "massive misrepresentations" of the Canadian position.

Katz said Monday a prior agreement between governments was necessary to cover such points as future export taxes, access to the line for Canadian oil, as well as ownership and control.

He said that in 1970 Washington proposed such an agreement to "increase the energy interchange between the U.S. and Canada."

"The Canadians were unreceptive and at every point those efforts were rebuffed," he said.

"Well certainly," Sharp said Monday adding the government has no authority to negotiate on a Mackenzie Valley line since by law the National Energy Board has to approve any applications for such a line.

"We could not negotiate — we were prevented by law from doing so," the external affairs minister said. It was because of this, he added, that the Canadian government in its discussions with the Americans has tried to get the Americans to apply to build a line through Canadian territory.

He said that the Canadian government made it clear to the U.S. government that it would welcome such an application.

Sharp was asked, if everything is up to the NEB, why the Liberal minority govern-

Ferries Running Late

B.C. ferries were an hour behind schedule but sailing hourly and handling all the traffic this morning in a labor dispute involving ships' engineers.

Ferries manager Monty Aldous said only the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen run was affected this morning.

Peter Marshall, Victoria representative for the B.C. Government Employees Union, said the dispute involves engine checks by engineers before the start of each shift.

Engineers must undertake the check before sailing and come in 20 minutes ahead of shift to do it, said Marshall. Aldous said the engine checks are normal procedure and should only take five to 10 minutes.

Marshall said the 20-minute early start has been going on for some years and the issue has not been resolved in past negotiations.

The ferry authority wanted the matter referred to a committee but when the men heard this, they decided to take "spontaneous action" in protest Tuesday.

Aldous said today the request for such a committee came from union representatives and was accepted by management.

He said no one in the marine industry pays overtime for a change of shift and management could not find "anyone in any industry" paid overtime on a change in shift where there are 24-hour shifts as there are on most ferries.

"Since the memorandum of understanding under which we negotiate makes provision for the appointment of the neutral referee, whose decision is final and binding on all parties, to rule on items where there is a deadlock, we suggested turning the matter over to such referee for such a decision," Aldous said.

"We are still prepared to take such action and abide by the decision."

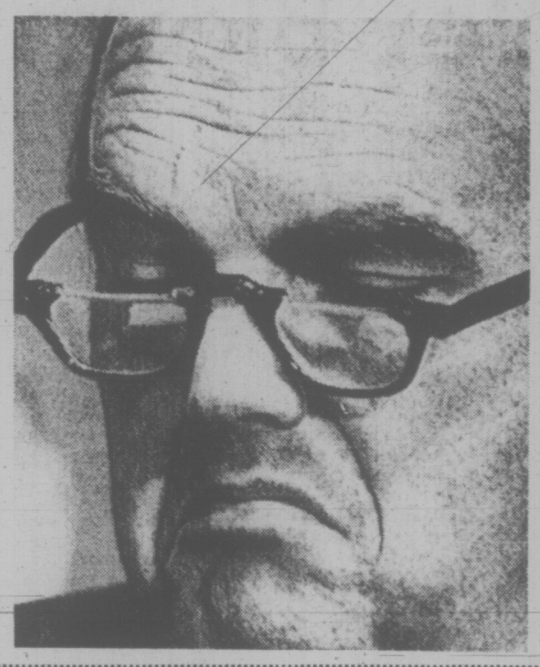
Dean Lied—Ehrlichman



WASHINGTON (AP) — John Ehrlichman today quoted President Nixon as saying in March that the 1971 Ellsberg break-in was "a vital national security inquiry" well within his constitutional powers and obligations.

Nixon said last May 22 that he didn't authorize the break-in, didn't know about it until recently, and would have disapproved it if brought to his attention.

Ehrlichman denied trying to hide the incident from FBI agents investigating last year's Watergate burglary and wiretapping, saying he had been told that the justice department already had the information.

He said the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist was a proper way to track down those who had betrayed government secrets, said any government official would understand that and keep the break-in confidential, and said even the public would agree if only news media would properly inform them of all the facts.

Testifying before the Senate Watergate committee, Ehrlichman also accused ousted White House counsel John Dean in general terms of lying to the committee.

He said the White House relied on Dean to supply information about the Watergate scandal.

"I do not suggest that we were all just too busy to have noticed," President Nixon's former domestic adviser said. "We did notice and we kept informed through John Dean on the assumption that he was giving us complete and accurate information.

"Let's be clear: I did not cover up anything to do with Watergate. Nor were Mr. Dean and I keeping steady company during all those weeks."

Ehrlichman described as "falser than all the other falsehoods" Dean's testimony that there was an overriding

'Hinterland' Role Over in West: PM

CALGARY (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau served notice today that the "national policy" established a century ago by Sir John A. Macdonald no longer applies to Western Canada.

This means that the federal government recognizes that the West no longer is a "hinterland," designed merely to provide raw materials to serve Central Canada, he told the opening session of the conference on Western Economic Opportunities.

The prime minister agreed with the contention of the four western premiers that the old federal policy meant that western progress was unevenly spread and "narrowly-based."

"This conference at Calgary signifies the government of Canada's belief that, a century after the old national policy, we can now together begin shaping a new national policy, a policy to strengthen Canada by achieving more balanced and diversified regional growth throughout the country."

Although giving no details, he indicated several federal proposals to be made during the three-day conference: A program for further processing of resouces before export; changes in the transport system to promote more balanced western economic growth; new measures to stabilize agricultural income; more aid to small business; methods to enable westerners to develop regionally-based financial institutions; and greater opportunities for western input into federal decision-making.

FOUR OBJECTIVES

Trudeau listed four objectives for western development:

—A broader range of employment opportunities.

—Greater concern by all levels of government for the individual westerner.

The western summit began today with Trudeau and the four regional premiers sitting around a horseshoe-shaped table to swap ideas and proposals.

The premiers have all said they want action, not merely general solutions for the distant future.

PICKET LINE BETTER THAN HIS COOKING

PORT HARDY (CP) — Loggers employed by MacMillan Bloedel took to the picket line here Monday when they saw who was in the cookhouse.

A company spokesman explained the loggers have been complaining about the quality of food served them by a relief cook in the camp kitchen while the regular cook was on holiday.

The spokesman said the regular cook, who was due back for breakfast Monday, missed his plane and when the 180 loggers saw the relief cook still there they walked off the job and set up a picket line waiting for the regular cook to arrive.

The men went back on the job today when the regular cook turned up.

French Planning H-Test: Papers

PARIS (UPI) — French military experts plan to set off soon a new and powerful nuclear explosion in their Pacific testing grounds, possibly using a hydrogen warhead, it was reported today.

Two newspapers — the mass circulation France-Soir and the conservative Le Figaro — said France planned to follow up last Saturday's test of a low-yield nuclear triggering device with the explosion of a hydrogen warhead.

"A new nuclear test might be carried out tonight," France-Soir said. "It is reported to be a megaton charge, probably an 'H' bomb."

New Zealand naval observers estimated the size of the first explosion at five kilotons, the equivalent of 5,000 tons of TNT.

Reports reaching Papeete, Tahiti, said the French naval squadron policing the seas around the Mururoa Atoll test site will remain on station, strengthening reports a second blast would come shortly.

Military sources in Paris said the current test series was needed — despite widespread protests in France and abroad — to perfect a trigger for hydrogen warheads to be used aboard atomic submarines.

Times News Services

Shoppers paying 73 cents for a dozen eggs at the start of President Nixon's new economic plan paid as much as $1.19 a dozen in New York City stores today.

Eggs, chicken and pork prices soared in many parts of the country Monday, the fourth day of Nixon's Phase IV economic program. There was some evidence shoppers were stocking up, in anticipation of even greater price increases to come.

Food prices have increased slowly since last Wednesday when Nixon announced the new plan which allows the food industry to pass along increased production costs to the public.

Eggs were up 12 cents a dozen in Salt Lake City and Kansas City, 10 cents in Washington, New York, Houston, Oklahoma City and Austin, Tex., nine cents in Boston, eight in Seattle and Los Angeles. Six in Atlanta and Dallas and five in Pittsburgh.

Poultry prices also rose quickly.

The price for whole frying chickens jumped from 59 cents a pound to 70 cents in New York City; from 59 cents to 79 cents in Columbus, Ohio. In Pittsburgh, chicken prices were up 10 cents a pound, Boston six cents, Atlanta four cents, and Chicago two cents. In Dallas, however, uncut chicken prices dropped—from 55 cents last week to 40 cents Monday.

The manager of a Tom Thumb market in Dallas said shoppers were stocking up on groceries.

"They wiped out the meat counter yesterday," he said. "We will be back in business today but they sure wiped us out yesterday. I wouldn't say it was a panic but there was a certain fear of shortage. In some cases they spent hundreds of dollars."

Meanwhile in Canada, a spokesman for Canada Packers said Monday in Edmonton the price of bacon will continue to rise as long as consumers are prepared to buy it.

Bacon, now selling at $1.19 a pound is expected to increase to $1.49 this week as meat prices reflect the removal of the price freeze in the United States, he said.

Commenting on estimates bacon prices in the U.S. would reach $1.79 a pound within 30 days, Robertson said it was not "unrealistic and it all depends on the consumer."

"If he'll pay, that's where the price will go."
